Summary: (machine translated) Discontinuous, but beautiful lime canyon; clean cold water; well equipped; short access; 2 entry points; several emergency exits in the upper part, more difficult towards the bottom; possible rockfall from hiking trail; most sunlight in the afternoon; several smaller tributaries; some logs; be careful with jumps/slides because of shallow ; info at "Outdoorfriends" (Roland Hatzenbichler). Attention!!! New siphon in the upper part. Currently bypassable with fixed ropes (April 2021).
Hydrology:
Access: (machine translated) approx. 1h From Sbg-Süd take the Westautobahn to Mondsee. Follow the main road (Romantikstraße) in the direction of St. Gilgen. After the village Scharfling turn left towards Unterach. Through the tunnel and always along Mondsee (L217) to the next junction. Here turn right towards Unterach am Attersee (B151). After about 2km turn right towards Burgau/Weißenbach am Attersee (B152). Follow the road next to the Attersee until you reach the Jägerwirt inn (approx. 2.5 km). Parking at the inn or after the Klausbach. (Inn parking €3,- If you consume something there after the tour, the €3,- will be credited).
Approach: (machine translated) approx. 20-30min From the parking lot (480m) next to the Jägerwirt, follow the hiking signs behind the inn, with the inscription "zur Bruggrabenklamm" or to the Eisenau (path 26). At the level of the statue of the Virgin Mary, the water level can be checked at the exit for about 500m. Then follow the hiking trail orographically to the left next to the canyon for about 20min up to the 1st entry point after the iron bridge that leads over the canyons (approx. 610m). For the upper entry follow the path over 2 wooden bridges and past the Magdalenenquelle (fountain). After a short time you will come to a signpost. Here, continue to follow trail 26 on the right in the direction of Eisenau. After the wooden footbridge, go up again briefly to a small wooden bridge. Here is the upper entry (approx. 670m).

Tour: (machine translated)

approx. 2,5-3h

Shortly after the upper entry at about 670m there is a small slide and a 10m abseil in the water course. A longer downclimb and walking passage follows with a short narrow part. After a while there is another 10m abseil and then a 15m abseil in the water course. After that there are several nice small pools, washouts and a walking passage, until the iron bridge (lower entry). The 2nd part is often commercially walked and is therefore well set up. From the bridge you have again a longer walking and downclimb passage, before you come to the first larger step. Here you can mostly descend via fixed ropes. Even at higher water levels there are often opportunities to rappel outside the water flow, but the canyon should not be underestimated, because especially the narrow sections can be very dangerous. The highlight towards the exit is a beautiful 20m waterfall. Here you have the option of rappelling left in the water or right outside the water flow. The stand is best reached via a traversese rope (anchor for ropeway below also available!). Then you stand in the middle of high canyon walls. Here a path with rope protection leads out of the canyons to the left. If you are still motivated, you follow the water course over smaller steps to the end of the tour at about 500m to the actual exit.

Return: (machine translated)

On the left side of the brook you follow the hiking trail shortly to the inn/parking lot.

Walked from "above" again for a long time. I don't remember the tour being that nice; ideal if you don't have that much time on a sunny day. Great clear pools,... slides, jumps,...everything is possible at the moment and not at all slippery (machine translated)

Beautiful gorge, which is in good condition because of / thanks to the also commercial walks. Good protection, rappelling is possible both in and next to the stream. (machine translated)
