Summary: (machine translated)
Gully generally dry but after rains has its attraction. Without a combination of cars the access is very long and does not pay off.

Hydrology:

Access:
Situados en Villahermosa del Rio.
Salimos del pueblo dirección norte hacia Puertomingalvo por la CV175 unos 3kms, desvío a la derecha a Masía Roncales. Bajamos una pista asfaltada 1 km aprox y encontramos un desvío a la izquierda a Masía Roncales, ahora ya por pista de tierra. Al llegar a la Masía y a la Posada del Río Carbó podemos aparcar o seguir un poco más por la pista remontando el Río Carbó y aparcar.
El coche de acceso desde Villahermosa, antes de llegar nos desviamos a la derecha hacia el Mas de Borras, seguimos las indicaciones. Al poco en una curva de izquierdas amplia dejamos las indicaciones y seguimos de frente por la pista que sal, estamos a unos 920m de altura y la pista que va hacia el Mas de Borrás empieza a bajar y la nuestra sigue subiendo (3kms desde la carretera). A los 100m de desviarnos sale una pista a la derecha que no seguimos, nosotros seguimos hacia arriba.
Al kilómetro y medio tenemos un desvío, en este nos metemos a la derecha a media ladera y kilómetro y medio después a la izquierda para subir a un collado donde aparcaremos.

Approach: (machine translated)
With two cars, from the pass we will see a strip that goes up on the right side and once up you only have to go down to the two tributaries and choose one of them.
With a car, from the Carbó river, we go up and soon we have a path on the right towards the Masia de la Atalaia, we follow this path until it crosses the stream of Cepera and goes up to a track. We take the track to the right until we find (when changing slope) a path to the left with white/yellow marks that goes up. We will follow it and through the forest will lead us to a track that leaves us on the hill where you can park.

Tour: (machine translated)
Two possible accesses, one with 5 shorter rappels and the other with two. From here we descend to a chaos of blocks and a kicking area after which we have two more rappels. After passing this we go left on a path to a track as we have a while of ravine with nothing. Then we go back down to the ravine and we can follow it to the river Carbó or follow the path to the Masia de la Atalaya.

Return: (machine translated)
If we go back through the Masía we will stop at the GR path and from there we go down to the car.
If we follow the ravine we end up at the river and go up to the track to the car.
