Summary: (machine translated) Short tour that has two narrow parts. Unfortunately, there is a lot of walking before and after, so you can't do the canyon very quickly.
Hydrology: (machine translated) Relatively small catchment area, will probably be almost completely dry in summer, best suited for spring.
Access: (machine translated) Park at the exit of the canyon at 1290m.
Approach: (machine translated) At P.1440 take the hiking trail up to around 1550m, and then try to get into the canyon from the side (you may need a rope) as the stream is not worthwhile above this point.
Tour: (machine translated) Two parts with two rappels each (15m and 10m, then 5m and 15m) interrupted by a walking passages with lots of wood ...
Return: (machine translated) Turn right at the forest road at 1290m.
