Access: (machine translated) From Bregenz via Alberschwende to Mellau. Past Schnepfau, before reaching the edge of the forest, turn left onto the road that would lead back to Schnepfau into the village. But we turn right after a few meters onto the dirt road and park the car before the bridge.
Approach: (machine translated) We follow the dirt road further into the forest. We cross a quarry. The track goes up in serpentine. We reach our forest gorge, the forest road now goes flat for a few meters. Then a track goes off to the right, which we follow to the streambed (beyond the stream wildlife feeding).
Tour: (machine translated) At the beginning, sloping ropes in open slope. The core sections are then a 40 m high waterfall (rappel possible before the edge: 12 m/30 m), as well as the 35 m high, somewhat winding final waterfall (rappel 15 m/20 m makes sense; the last 20 m can also be rappelled in the dry, following the wire rope handrail). The canyon can possibly still be climbed when most other streams in the Bregenzerwald have too much water. It is also commercially walked.
Return: (machine translated) After the final waterfall, which you may already know from visiting, out to the old road. On this right (northward) to the new road and next to this back to the car.

Reports:

2024-07-21 | Christian Balla | ★★ | 📖 ★★★ | ⚓★★ | 🌊 Normal | 🟢 Completed
Anchoring in good condition. In summer with thin neo (2 to 3mm) well feasible. (machine translated)

2023-10-07 | Christian Balla | ★★ | 📖 ★★★ | ⚓★★ | 🌊 Low | 🟢 Completed
Little water. In the final passage after the 40er (photo), where it goes around the corner, hooks are bent. As a result, we couldn't get the rope off at first and had to climb back up via the emergency exit. (machine translated)

2023-08-04 | Christian Balla | ★★ | 📖 ★★★ | ⚓★★ | 🌊 Crazy | 🚫 Not done
Extreme rain, extreme amounts of water. Only climbed the last abseil. This was easily accessible from the path. (machine translated)
