Summary: (machine translated)
High mountain canyon, somewhat fattened, slippery and very interesting. The magnificent waterfall of Broate is worth the effort. We must evaluate the flow very well before entering. The access by the Noguera Lladorre will not leave us indifferent.
Regulated Ravine (Parc Natural de l'Alt Pirineu in Lleida)

Access: (machine translated)
By the N260 to Sort, once there we turn off on the C13 to Llavorsi.
In Llavorsí, just at the entrance, after the bridge we turn right onto the L504 to Alins/Ribera de Cardós/Tavascán following the river Cardós, a wide and magnificent valley. After almost 4kms we will have a traffic circle, we will continue on the left to Tavascan.
Cross the village and continue towards the Vall de Cardós up the river Lladorre to the Montalto dam and park.

Approach: (machine translated)
We will continue along the path of Pla de Boavi going up the Lladorre river until we reach a bridge that crosses it to go up to the refuge of Broate (end of the descent). At this point we will have the Romedo ravine on our left. We will continue along the path that goes up to the Broate refuge, a small path through the forest that takes us up the slope parallel to the river up to an altitude of almost 1950, at which point the path finally approaches the river and we access the riverbed.

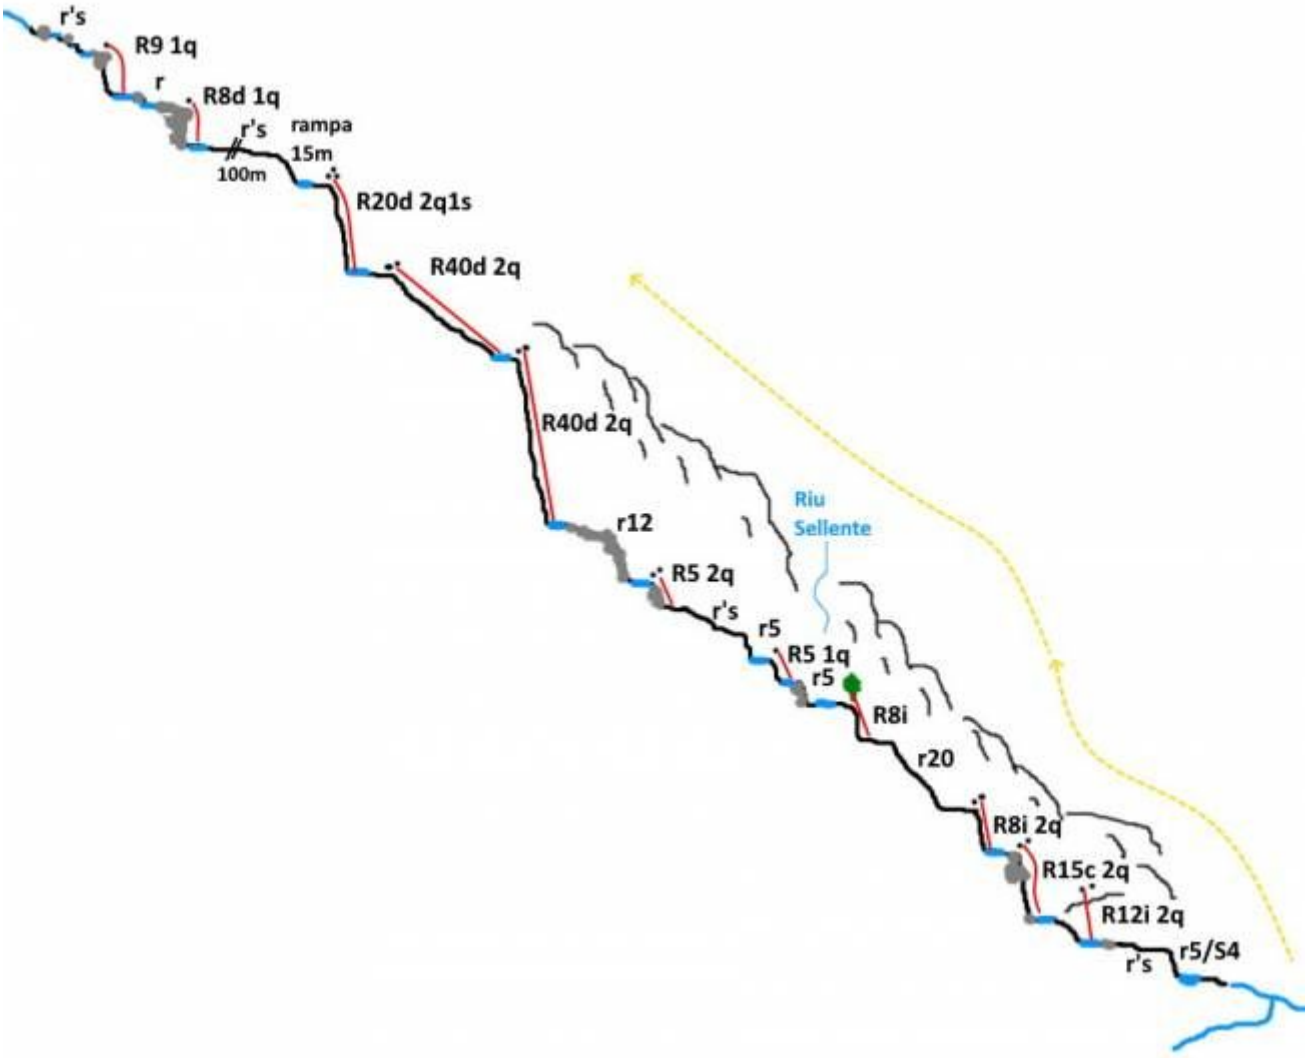

Tour: (machine translated)
Very cold waters and slippery ground will welcome us in this impressive setting. Long rappels of up to 40m with good flows, some pools and a great high mountain environment.
The first less fattened part, as we approach the great waterfall of Broate, will close. From here to the end much narrower until we reach the bridge.
