Summary: (machine translated)
In short: a geological attraction that's fun and a must-see!
Just one rappel

Hydrology:

Access: (machine translated)
From Roseau, drive toward Trafalgar Valley, then turn right toward Wotten Waven and its “sulfur springs.”
Once you arrive in Wotten Waven, drive up the hill on the right until the road turns into a dirt road; at a hairpin curve, park your car on the left in a small parking lot.

Approach: (machine translated)
From the parking lot, follow the path, walk past a house, and then look for the trail that turns left and leads down to the river.

Tour: (machine translated)
You’ll only need to use the ropes at a single waterfall; the rest is a beautiful hike with a few small rocky outcrops and, above all, fumaroles, hot springs, bubbling caves, sulfur fumes, and so on.
In short: a geological attraction that’s fun and definitely worth experiencing!

Apart from the C15, there are no obligations—you can hike back up the trail from the bottom!

A must-see because of the geological features and the area’s distinctive character.
A small, cozy, and typical bar on the way down to the intersection at the village entrance (across from the park information board)

Return: (machine translated)
When you see a house on your left (with hot tubs across the river on the left bank), take the path immediately after that, keeping to the right, which will take you past a hot tub, a bubbling pool, and a small lookout point, and eventually lead you to the parking lot.
