Specialities:

Gear:
Ropes: 1x20

Summary:
Slightly narrow stream just south of the Malvan valley.

Hydrology:
At an altitude of 1170 there is a well-marked spring (sorgente Costa Legner) from the right bank

Access:

Approach:
After parking the car, take the trail on the left bank that runs alongside and crosses the stream several times, staying mostly on the right bank for about 20 minutes.
When you reach 490 meters, do not follow tributary on left, but keep to the right bank of the main meander (right stream)
When you see the initial meander (pipes high up on the rock), climb the steep forest on the right bank until you reach a wooded pulpit (view of a house on the opposite side). From here, descend along a good trail to the stream bed: a rock cliff on the left and a small aqueduct house on the left.
