Summary: (machine translated)
Cascada de Gundrei or barranco del rego de San Miguel are its toponymies. Located in the Ribeira Sacra in a ravine little excavated, with multiple veins in some sections and whose verticality and lushness gives it a certain size, but not its flow. It is better with a combination of cars, although not obligatory. In summer it is usually left in a thread

Access: (machine translated)
Situated in the Ribeira Sacra, we must focus on Nogueira de Ramuín (Luíntra).
From there we will leave by the OU-0508, towards the monastery of Santo Estevo and its parador, after 5kms we will arrive, we have it on the left. Here we would leave the access car in case we have two vehicles.
With the car of return, or if we only have one, we will have to go to the road that goes parallel to the river Sil, we take it 3kms later in Loureiro (detour to the jump of San Esteban). By this road we go down to the Sil, we will pass by the viewpoint of the dam, the bridge over the Sil and shortly after in a right curve, a small parking next to the stream in its last projections, next to the indicator of the natural path of the Ribeira Sacra.

Approach: (machine translated)
If we only have one vehicle, we will have to go up the natural path to the monastery.
In both options, from the monastery we will take the old path that leads to the ruins of Santo Estevo.

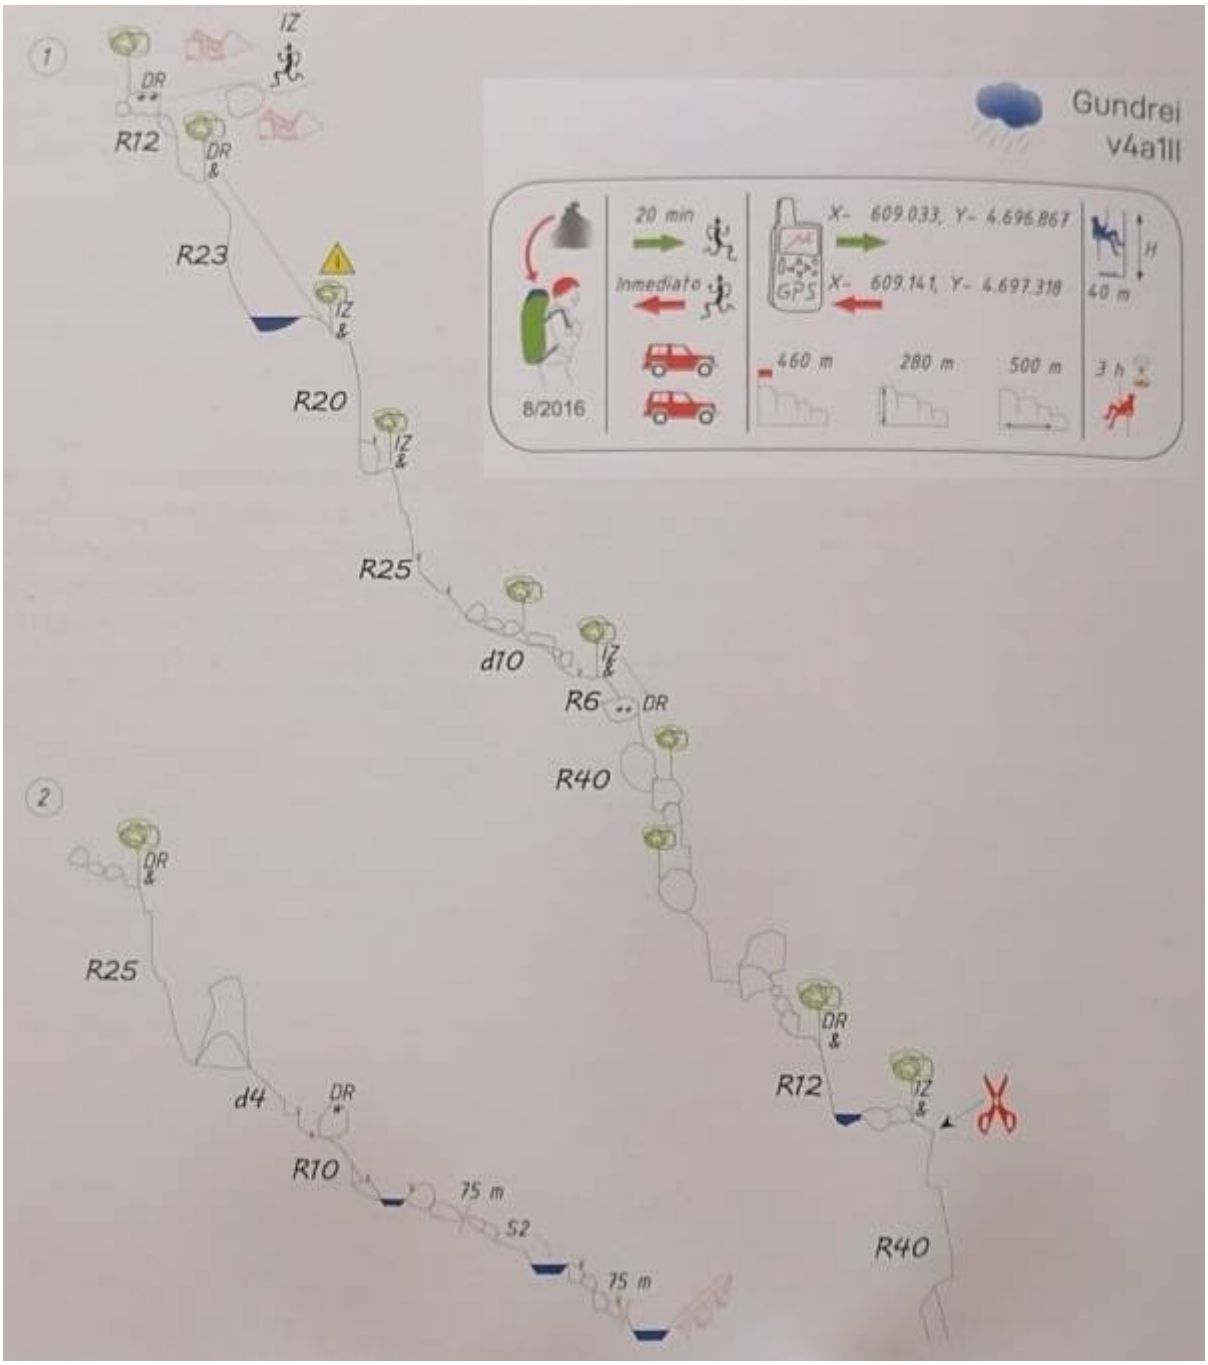

Tour: (machine translated)
See mole.
Vertical and almost without rest

Return: (machine translated)
We arrived at the bridge over the highway
