Specialities:

Gear:
Ropes: 2x 30m

Summary: (machine translated)
A series of 22 rappelling points (ranging from 5 to 27 meters) with no breaks, accompanied by a constantly flowing trickle of water.

Hydrology: (machine translated)
Wait for the rainy season to enjoy it to the fullest.

The canyon is relatively open, except for the narrow section toward the end (C21 + C22).
There is one exit option right at the start (at the base of the second rappelling point).

Access: (machine translated)
Drive up to CILAOS and take the D242 toward ILET in CORDES.
Drive through the BRAS ROUGE canyon, past the first parking lot and the GOBERT canyon.
100 meters further on, in a left-hand curve, two or three vehicles can park near a wooden table (elevation 1,280 m).

Approach: (machine translated)
From the parking lot, head into the canyon above the bridge. Immediately take a path that ascends on the right. The path climbs quite steeply. Follow it along the ridge that separates COIN superiore from GOBERT superiore (beautiful views of CILAOS).
After 20 minutes, a trail branches off to the left—which you should not take (alternate route from COIN superiore)—and you continue on to a small plateau in front of a rock barrier, which you go around on the left. This is the first canyon with running water.

Tour: (machine translated)
A sequence of 22 rappelling points (ranging from 5 to 27 m) with no breaks, accompanied by a constantly flowing trickle of water.

A beginner-friendly canyon where the water level can be checked right at the start of the access from the road. Equipment should be checked at specific obstacles.

Return: (machine translated)
At the foot of the last section with the rope, leave the trail or continue walking along the streambed for another 5 minutes.
