Specialities:
Gear: Ropes: 2x60m
Summary: (machine translated) Gneiss canyon with lots of vegetation. Good warm-up tour for larger projects.
Hydrology: (machine translated) Catchment area mainly forest. From October to February, mostly stable weather conditions with little precipitation.
Access: (machine translated) Drive to Karuwa, you have to redeem the Annapurna Permit beforehand.
Approach: (machine translated) Walk up to 2400m on the Mardi Himal East Trek. From there, follow a small hunter's trail through the forest to a tributary of Bhalaudi, where you rappel down to the main stream. Better ask for guides, Tanka and Chack should know the way down to the tributary.
Tour: (machine translated) A few tight spots at the beginning, and cool rappels. Towards the exit a bit more blocks, but some jumps possible.
Return: (machine translated) Look for tracks on the left, in the Seti valley a large hydro plant is being built, there are some forest roads that are not yet on the maps.
