Specialities:

Gear:

Summary: (machine translated)
Dry ravine, of torrential character that drains into the Bco la Mina and from there into the Valenciano. Multitude of rappels, many of which can be climbed.
Essential combination of vehicles. In summer to avoid the hours of more heat

Hydrology:

Access: (machine translated)
We will have to get to Albondón, which we will reach from Albuñol on the A345.
Bcos in Albodón
Once past Albuñol, just at the exit, at the traffic circle, turn left onto the A4131 towards Órgiva and Sorvilán, drive 2kms to the Cantor bridge and park the exit car here.
With the access car we will return to the traffic circle and now we will go up to Albondón, we cross the village and on the outskirts we will find the sports facilities on the left. If we have a low car or do not want to get on the track, we will park here.
If we want to continue by track, just past the sports facilities there is a track on the left, next to the light tower, we get into it and 150m later there is a fork with three tracks, we take the one on the left. We will follow it for 2km towards the SW with the bco la Mina on our left. We will find a fork that we will take to the right now overlooking our ravine to descend and 500m later we will park next to a hut trying not to disturb.

Approach: (machine translated)
Evident by continuing the trail to the riverbed or by climbing up the slope towards the riverbed.

Tour: (machine translated)
A multitude of rappels, many of which can be climbed (see topo).

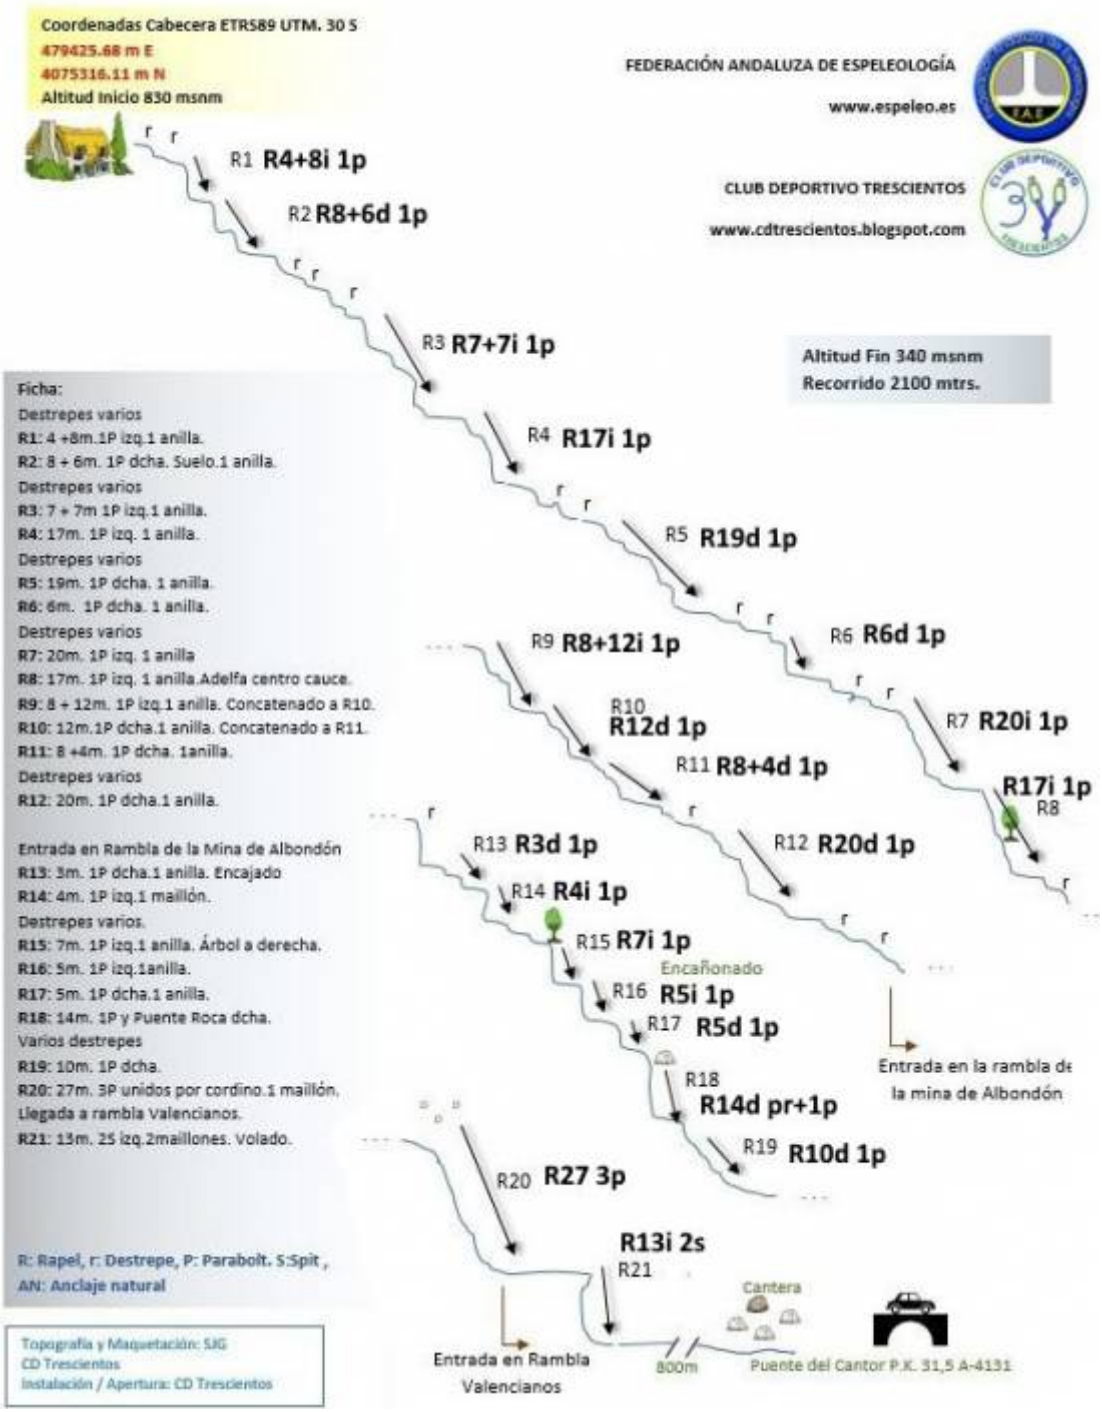

Return: (machine translated)
We will arrive at the Rambla de los Valencianos which we will have to follow
