Summary: (machine translated)
Forest canyon - three small rappels - a few downclimbs.

Hydrology: (machine translated)
Little water, rare and small pools.

Access: (machine translated)
A10 Ventimiglia/Genua highway, exit Arma di Taggia. 2.6 km after the toll booth, take the second road on the right towards Imperia-Taggia via the SS1bis. At the traffic circle, turn left towards Taggia-Triora. The road runs along the left bank, then hairpin bends back to the right bank and crosses the river Oxentina shortly afterwards. Turn right just after the bridge, signs "Meosü". Park just before the bridge over the Argentina.

Approach: (machine translated)
Cross the bridge and continue on. When the asphalt exits, follow a level dirt path and then a slightly sloping concrete path past a house. A latticed canal leads to the bridge over the Rio Lona. Immediately afterwards, steps lead to a path on the left bank. Leave this for a "gentle wild boar climb", which ascends steeply via small paths and after 10 minutes of effort meets a good path, which you follow to the dam.

The access paths (at the start of the ascent) lead to private property, so behave discreetly and politely.

Tour: (machine translated)
After the fill, return to the river and go through the tunnel.
3 abseiling points (5, 10 and 10) and some 2 to 3 m high ledges that have to be jumped over or climbed down.

Good hold.

Return: (machine translated)
50 meters after the C3 under the bridge, leave the right bank and take a path that exits in front of the house you passed on the way there.
