Summary: (machine translated) Beautiful view of the Lech; upper part very open, lower part cut in the forest; many slippery places; mostly little water; many exit possibilities; short, steep ascent; exposure S/O; often still possible after precipitation; brittle sedimentary rock; standings good; Can be well combined with the Wiesbach near Stanzach; barbecue area at suspension bridge; catchment area about 1Km².
Hydrology:
Access: (machine translated) 15min From Reutte to the village of Forchach. Turn right off the main road and drive to the industrial park/sports ground. There is a large gravel parking place in front of the metal company.
Approach: (machine translated) 50min From the parking lot past the sports field to the Lech. Here over the slightly swinging metal suspension bridge. Directly after the bridge you are already in front of the exit of the tour. From here, about 20m orographically to the left of the stream, steep tracks lead up the sparse forest to a steep rock face. The rock face is hiked around to the right until you come to a small steep passage with old wooden stamps. Shortly after the steep passage you meet a forest road that leads to a wildlife feeding station on the left. From here, the trail zigzags steeply uphill until you cross the open terrain to the stream (further ascent to the second forest road is not worthwhile).
Tour: (machine translated) 2h The short tour offers after the steep access a beautiful view of the Lech and two nice 25m abseils in the upper part of the canyon. After short walking terrain in the middle of the canyon follows the lower part, which also has more slippery abseils in the vegetated surroundings. The abseils (16-25m) follow each other without much distance before arriving at the Lech bike path.
Return: (machine translated) 10min Either get off right at the bike path at approx. 950m and follow the path over the suspension bridge back to the parking lot or continue descending until you reach the confluence with the Lech and cross the river to get back to the parking lot on the other side (watch out for the water level of the Lech!).

Anchorage ok, many new, a few maillons are a little reddish. Little wood. Despite an intensive search, the access paths can no longer be found/exist. We had to go cross-country. You can hike under the rock face on the first part to the right until you reach the forest path or use a passage at <https://goo.gl/maps/nMsGZA18N6DkiqnZ9> use. Then up through the fern field until you reach the road. Then turn left to the stream and orographically left of the stream (i.e. do not cross) up to the entry point. Photo: Checkpoint at the exit (directly behind the bridge) - low water level. (machine translated)
