| Summary: (machine translated) Long and beautifully shaped gorge, only carrying water after a long rainy season. Otherwise dry except for a disgusting pool (cable car possible). | | |
| Hydrology: | | |
| Access: (machine translated) From Inca on the MA2130 in the direction of Lluc. At the top of the mountain pass, take the MA10 and follow it to the left towards Soller, then take a winding road towards Port de sa Calobra. Before you reach the 'Col des Reis' mountain pass, you can park in a bend to the right. For the parking exit, follow the road towards the sea and follow the signs for Cala Tuent Parking at the prominent 'Nus de sa Corbata' hairpin bends. If you want to descend to the sea, park a second car at the paid parking lot in Sa Calobra. Car transfer makes sense. | | |
| Approach: (machine translated) Follow the path marked with cairns to the west, ascending to a mountain shoulder, then descending into the still wide valley of the Torrent del Gorg des Diners | | |
| Tour: (machine translated) Several gorge sections separated by a longer walking section. Pools are longer water-bearing, but bypasses or cable cars can generally be set up. | | |
| Return: (machine translated) Ideally by car, the way back via the road or the plateau takes 1.5h - 3h | | |

By chance I went into the canyon upstream on the "hiking trail" (from Sa Calobra) (better not to do it!) to test an alternative route to the Torrent de Pareis entry. Canyon well overgrown. Access path really a pain for people in shorts. Grass, thorn bushes and the like do the rest. Got to the 15-20 meter rappel, which looked quite nice from below. There were glued anchors or old rope remnants at the abseil points I found. (machine translated)
