Summary: (machine translated)
It is a ravine of open riverbed, but with many rappels, the first of them of 40m in overhang followed by many others of smaller size. It is characterized by its stratified rock, a geological singularity that is exposed after years of erosion.

Hydrology:

Access: (machine translated)
We must approach Losilla (province of Valencia), although the ravine belongs to Teruel. Once in the village we have two options:
1 car, we leave it in the village at the exit, next to the trail signs.
2 cars, Losilla towards Arcos de Las Salinas just before km 7 there is a track on the left where to park. The return car we go towards Puebla de San Miguel (CV-636) we go down the zetas the bridge and park where we see room.

Approach: (machine translated)
In blue the option of a single car. We take the GR towards the head of the ravine, with the cuts on the left until the beginning of the ravine (it is very obvious).
Red (2 cars), just follow the riverbed to the head of the ravine.

Tour: (machine translated)
It starts with the 40 rappel and follows rappels down to the river bed.

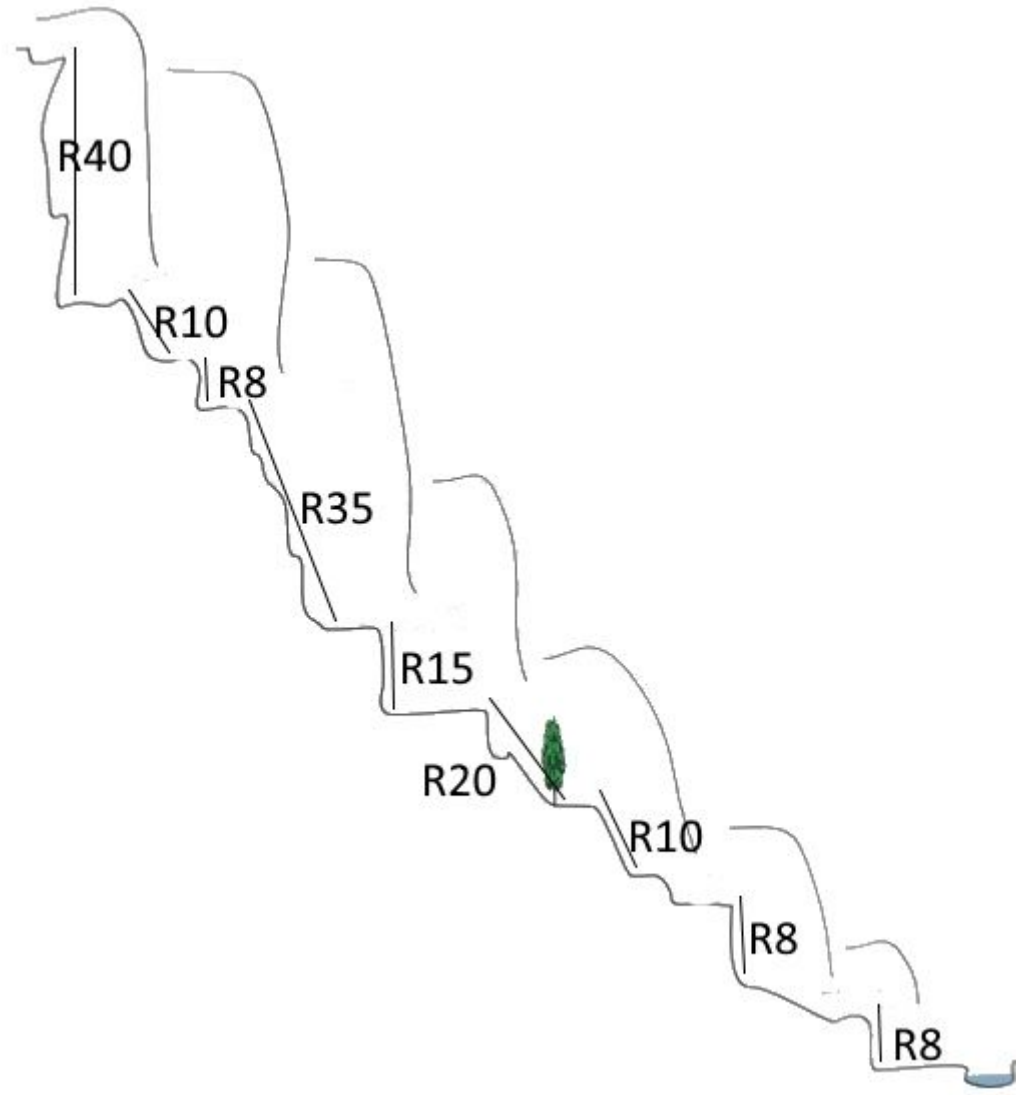

Return: (machine translated)
Two cars, follow the path to the Molino Nuevo.
One car, on the left side there is a path that goes up to the zetas.
