Summary: (machine translated)
Simple canyon except in rainy seasons, when it is only for people with experience. In summer it is a good canyon for beginners, taking into account the slipperiness of this type of canyon.

Access: (machine translated)
We need to head to Valadouro.
We drive toward A Seara on the LU160; here, we turn toward Pereiro on the LU-P-0202. After 2 km, we reach Carrocide, where we'll see a road to the left toward Oira and one to the right toward Pereiro; we'll take the right fork onto the LU-P-0204 for another 2 km. Here, a small hut and a sign for Azureira will indicate where to turn left. From this point on, it gets a bit more confusing—these are narrow roads winding through small hamlets with virtually no signage. Try to head south, parallel to the Beloi River toward As Campelas; follow this narrow road for about one kilometer until you reach a fork, where you'll take the right-hand path. At the next intersection, 500 m ahead, turn left and cross the river over a small bridge. Continue south through this meadow full of crops for another 400 m; at this point, you'll cross another road, with a dirt track and a power tower ahead. Follow the dirt track, pass the house, and park shortly afterward. This is the starting point of the Wikiloc route.

Approach: (machine translated)
See wikiloc access.
By the track that goes south towards Rubeiro, goes up through the forest with the riverbed on our right, when we get to the top we will go to the right in search of the dam at the beginning of the ravine.

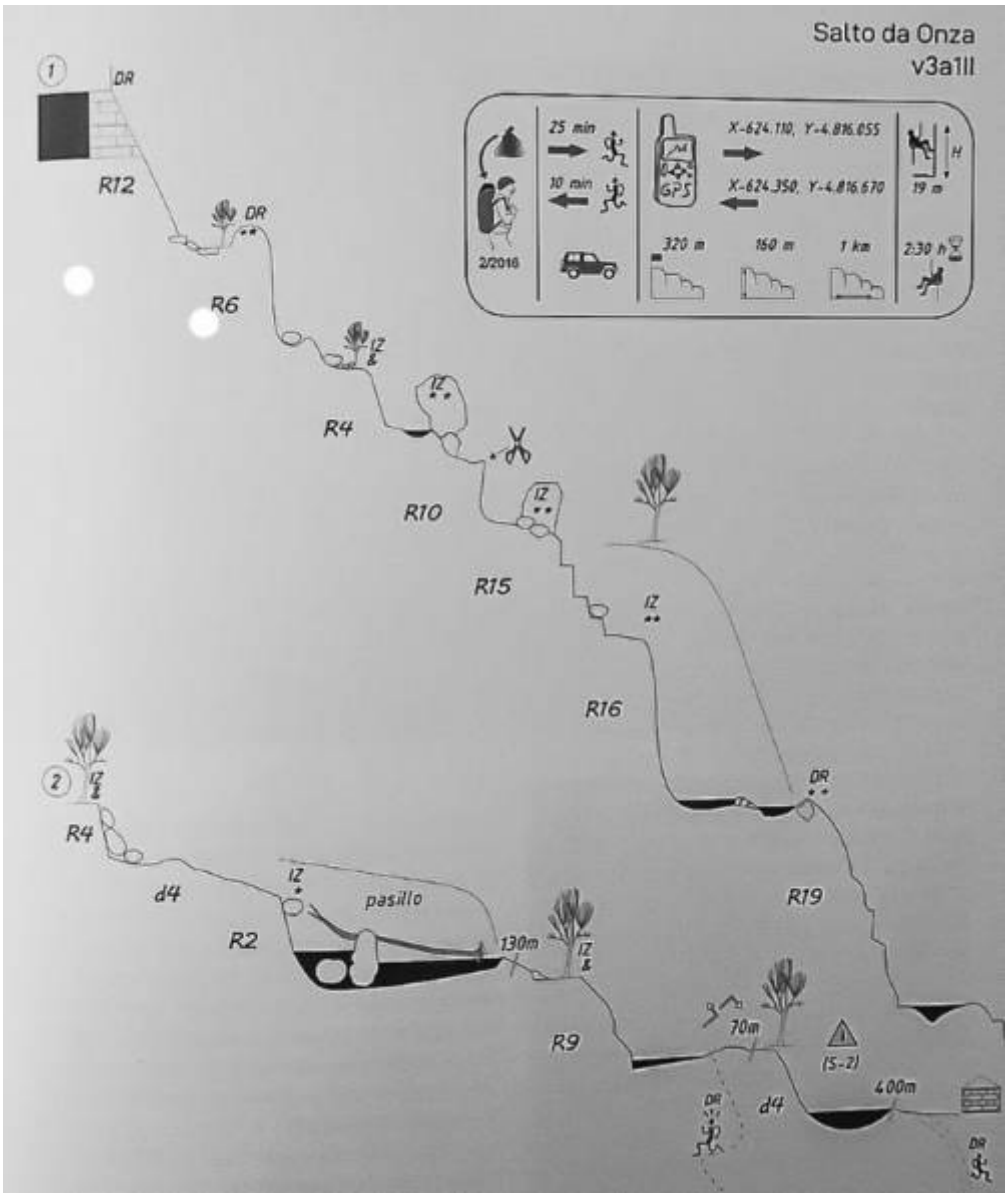

Tour: (machine translated)
Very slippery, small rappels except for the waterfall, almost all ramped.

Return: (machine translated)
After the last difficulties, we will exit to the right to the access road.
