Summary: (machine translated)
Dry canyon in the area of Coin, to be done better after rains. Without big rappels, enough undergrowth and a very peculiar rock, the peridotite. Quite a few rappels can be climbed.

Hydrology:

Access: (machine translated)
In Coín we will go south on the MA3303 road.
At the p.k. 3.5 we turn right onto the path of the fountain towards the Urbanization Barranco Blanco. We will go down to the bottom of the valley where we will park the return car (it is just the exit of our ravine).
With the access car we return to Coín and take the A355 and at the Coín turnoff we go south on the road to Canteros. We will park at the end of it.

Approach: (machine translated)
We take the path that climbs to the southeast to the pass, from here a small track, without so much ascent, will bring us closer to the head of the ravine.

Tour: (machine translated)
Easy, without great difficulties and with many abseilable rappels.

Return: (machine translated)
We will arrive almost at the parking area
