three 60 m ropes, a well-equipped equipment bag and a headlamp

A long and strenuous tour along the southern slope of Mount Gerbonte.
An initially dry but completely vertical part is followed by a long, wet march with numerous descents and unsecured rocky parts. The jagged limestone landscape makes for an interesting descent. A harness bag and a headlamp are essential.

From the foot of the 150 mark, the canyon turns left and extends over a part of at least 200 meters above sea level that is still unexplored. We turned right towards Cugnazzo, following a steep rocky ridge but with trees for anchoring.
