Summary: (machine translated)
A 55m rappel is the only attraction of this canyon. In the words of ECDC "in the middle of winter, when it is fully loaded, it can give some play, just thinking about the locals".

Hydrology:

Access: (machine translated)
A few 8 kms north of Verín, between Vences and Arcucelo.
Passed the p.k. 7, after 300m we have on the left a track that heads south at first. We will be able to park here if we do not have a high car.
With a high car we go up towards the Petroglyph of Covas Rubias, we pass it and when we arrive at the next crossroads we park, on the right we will make the return.

Approach: (machine translated)
We leave by the path that goes west to take the firewall, we follow it north to the watershed where it turns west again. At about 850m altitude we have a small path on our right above the steepest ramps of the basin, we will follow this path to the riverbed.

Tour: (machine translated)
A large ramp of 55m and a couple of small difficulties.

Return: (machine translated)
When the creek loses height, we will enter an uninteresting area and shortly after a small dam and a path on the right that will lead us to the access track.
