Summary: (machine translated)
Also called Zapirontxo, it is a beautiful ravine located in the valley of Hecho, more exactly in the Selva de Oza, under the walls of the Castillo de Acher. With a long and hard approach and an intermediate section that detracts from the rest of the ravine.

Hydrology:

Access: (machine translated)
On the N240 between Jaca and Pamplona, just at Puente de la Reina we have the detour to Hecho Valley (A176). We will cross the village of Hecho and continue climbing towards the Selva de Oza, where we will park the Selva de Oza refuge. Just where the road crosses the river.
We can park a car just at the exit of the ravine in the parking lot of Puente de Sil. Next to a small forest shelter and we save 30 minutes of returno.

Approach: (machine translated)
We will leave by the GR following the indications of ascent to the Castle of Acher, it goes to the top of the Espata ravine and climbs up to a forest refuge. Once up there we will see the ravine in the background. We will have to go down through a fairly decomposed area to the riverbed.

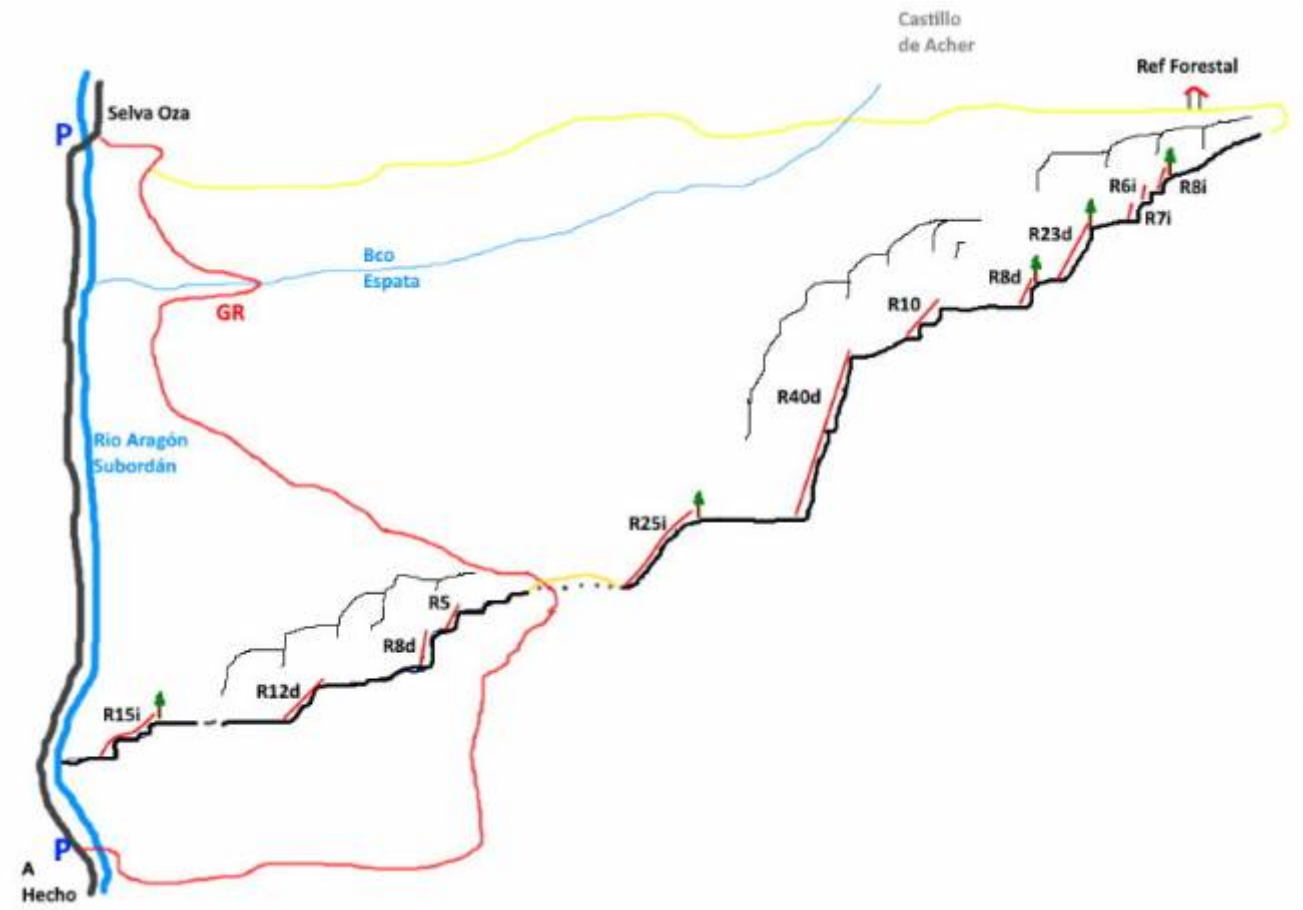

Tour: (machine translated)
Some small rappels bring us closer to the beautiful waterfalls of 23m and 40m, after this we have a 25m rappel and we reach an open area of no interest. Some guidebooks say that there is a path on the right that leads to the GR. Once here we can leave or continue along the lower part which will take us another hour.

Return: (machine translated)
For the GR if we do not do the lower part we can go down to the road on the left, on the right we would go to the parking lot but it is long.
If we do the lower part, we will have to cross the river and go up to the road.
