Summary: (machine translated)
Above all scenic impressive rappel canyon with long passages of climbing down

Hydrology:

Access: (machine translated)
The access to the parking lot for the lower car is shown here:\n * http://www.wikiloc.com/wikiloc/view.do?id=2522798 (however, you should not drive all the way to Casa de Cavallo, but park the car about 400 m beforehand in the hikers' parking lot).
In the second car, take the road from Roquetes up to Monte Caro. At an altitude of 730 m, the road crosses the Barranc del Farrubio in a striking right-hand bend. We park the second car in the parking lot with a fountain.

Approach: (machine translated)
From the southern end of the parking lot, we take the path - at times walking on a slope - up to the striking saddle (800 m above sea level).
From the saddle, the path leads us mainly horizontally along the slope to the south. Now we cross the wide basin of the Barranc de la Vall. We walk towards a dark rock face. There you will find the Font spring (960 m above sea level). Around the foot of the rock face we climb up again to the next ridge coming down from Monte Caro (980 m a.s.l.). Down the other side and we are at the entry to the Caramella.
The access from below is shown below:\n * http://www.wikiloc.com/wikiloc/view.do?id=2522815 (access from below)

Tour: (machine translated)
24 rappels, first downclimbing over grassy slopes, rappels from trees if necessary.
Towards the exit, the "Cua de Cavall" awaits us in the "Gran Circ" with a height of around 80m. There is a transfer point roughly in the middle. However, the rope retrival can cause problems here.
This steep drop can be bypassed to the right or left.
It is also possible to turn right on the ledge to the neighboring Racó de la Gralla (path) and "take" the attractive final passage there (below the 400m walk and climb).

Return: (machine translated)
We walk on the slope out of the valley, pass Casa de Cavallo and are soon at the parking lot with our "lower" car.
