Summary: (machine translated)
Aesthetic canyon, dry from spring; with running water peak (best in May).

Access: (machine translated)
We come from Jaca on the N-240 and drive westwards via Puente La Reina de Jaca and past Berdun in the direction of Pamplona. After 33.3 km (from Jaca) and 300m before the start of the new (2015) section of the A-21 highway, we turn right onto the road that leads north towards Villareal de la Canal, Majones and Fago. We always drive along the river and after 14.3 km (from N-240) we come to a dirt road coming from the bottom right (our exit route). We park the lower car here. The site is located on the road, which immediately before has turned a prominent corner in a westerly direction and now begins to ascend. If you are coming from the opposite direction (from the village of Fago), you will find this spot 4.6 km south of Fago (counting from the bridge over the stream at the southern exit of the village).
Continue north in the second car high above the canyon and after 1.8 km (from the lower parking lot) you will reach a bridge over the stream coming from the village of Fago. Immediately after the bridge is a large parking lot where we park our car for the entry. This parking lot is 2.8 km south of the village of Fago (counting from the bridge at the southern end of the village).

Approach: (machine translated)
Entry after a short walking passages.

Tour: (machine translated)
First flat terrain without gorge, possible jumps. Then gorge. Impressive siphon. Approx. 3 m diving section in the previous stream direction with a touch to the left, behind it dark), otherwise can also be bypassed on a "chain ferrata". Natural bridges. The gorge exits with a beautiful 12m waterfall into a large pool, followed by walking and downclimbing with further small possible jumps. We finally come to a rock ledge with parallel slabs at right angles to the stream. The exit to the right is at a large cairn.

Return: (machine translated)
We take the path found here, which first runs parallel to the stream, later in a wide curve up to the road and the parking area for the lower car.

Currently great water level. All stands tip top. Easily doable with 1 car, if you are motivated to run up (about 20 minutes jogging). All jumps doable. Siphon must be bypassed above and is secured with chains. A little gem when water runs through. (machine translated)
