Ropes: 2x40

Summary: (machine translated)
Small catchment area; 40m entry rappel into the canyon; clean water; limestone; beautiful single passages; many walking and downclimb passages; money and time savings with bike; some wooden entrapments; Attention! the pools often tempt to jump, but are mostly shallow ; several more difficult emergency exits possible.

Hydrology:

Access: (machine translated) from Sbg.Nord you drive over the A1 until the exit Mondsee. Then continue in the direction of Wolfgangsee/Bad Ischl. At Weißenbach turn right in the direction of Postalm. After some km beside the brook one meets a toll station, where per person € 5, - are due. (Recommendation: take your bike with you = save money and time). Approx. 2Km after the toll station you park the car at the 1st haipin bends, in front of the barrier (limited parking!).

Approach: (machine translated) (with the bike big time saving!).
After the barrier, follow the flat fort road (hiking trail marking). After some time the forest road passes a large hut and crosses a stream before it rises and leads to the dam of the Kammersbach. You cross the bridge and after a hairpin bend you come to a signpost (junction) where you turn right. Above the hunting lodge you go to the exit of the road. Here you will find a path that is difficult to see at the beginning, which leads up to the left to the Karlschlag area. The path leads above the stream over several small tributaries to the 2nd hunter's stand at about 1070Hm. After the hunter's stand one descends immediately right in the tributary, which leads one to the 1st approx. 40m rappel (tree loop right) at approx. 1030Hm. (But there are alternatives)

Tour: (machine translated)
To get into the canyon you rappel 40m from the tree. Arrived in the streambed follows a walking passage with small steps and pools that can be downclimbed or slid. After about 150m comes the 2nd rappelling point which runs directly in the water over a wooden crate. There are again walking and downclimb passages that lead to a large rock. Here is downclimbed to the right and shortly you are at the 3rd rappel (10m). Further follows an entertaining walking and descending section, where, except for a 5m step, the rope can be dispensed with. Before the 5m step, the canyon narrows, followed by many small water basins that are carefully climbed through. A prominent narrow chute marks the exit of the cut part. This section is rappelled downclimbed or with the ropes over an hourglass (left). A short walking section leads to the bridge/dam, where you exit the canyon on the left (approx. 850Hm). If you still feel like going further, you can rappel from the tree about 30m into the lower part of the canyon after the dam. For the further course usually no more ropes are needed. After about 40min. downclimbing and walking, you have an exit on the left via a tributary or you can choose the easier exit at the next bridge.

Return: (machine translated)
After the bridge you leave the streambed on the left side. Follow the already known forest road back to the parking lot.
