Summary: (machine translated)
Simple ravine on the Bubal reservoir that can be quickly combined with Coronazo. It does not usually carry too much water and dries out in summer. For collectors

Hydrology:

Access: (machine translated)
Map Baldiecho and Coronazo
By the N260 from Sabiñánigo to Biescas. We will continue straight on towards France on the A136 until just before reaching the Bubal dam, here we will have the detour to the right to Hoz de Jaca. The road crosses the dam and soon, before the horseshoes of ascent to Hoz, we have two streams Baldiecho and Coronazo, the first one is ours. A few meters before we can park.
If we take two cars, with the access car we will continue, we will make a sharp right curve, we will cross Coronazo and when we reach the sharp left curve we will park.

Approach: (machine translated)
Baldiecho and Coronazo Access
With two cars the access is immediate from the curve. With one car you have to walk up the road, 10-15min.

Tour: (machine translated)
Simple descent somewhat dressed but without problems to walk. Just before reaching the road we have the first rappels. Under the bridge another one in ramp and a last one to go down almost to the reservoir.

Return: (machine translated)
From the reservoir where we can see best to climb to the road. Or we leave the last rappel installed and ascend here.

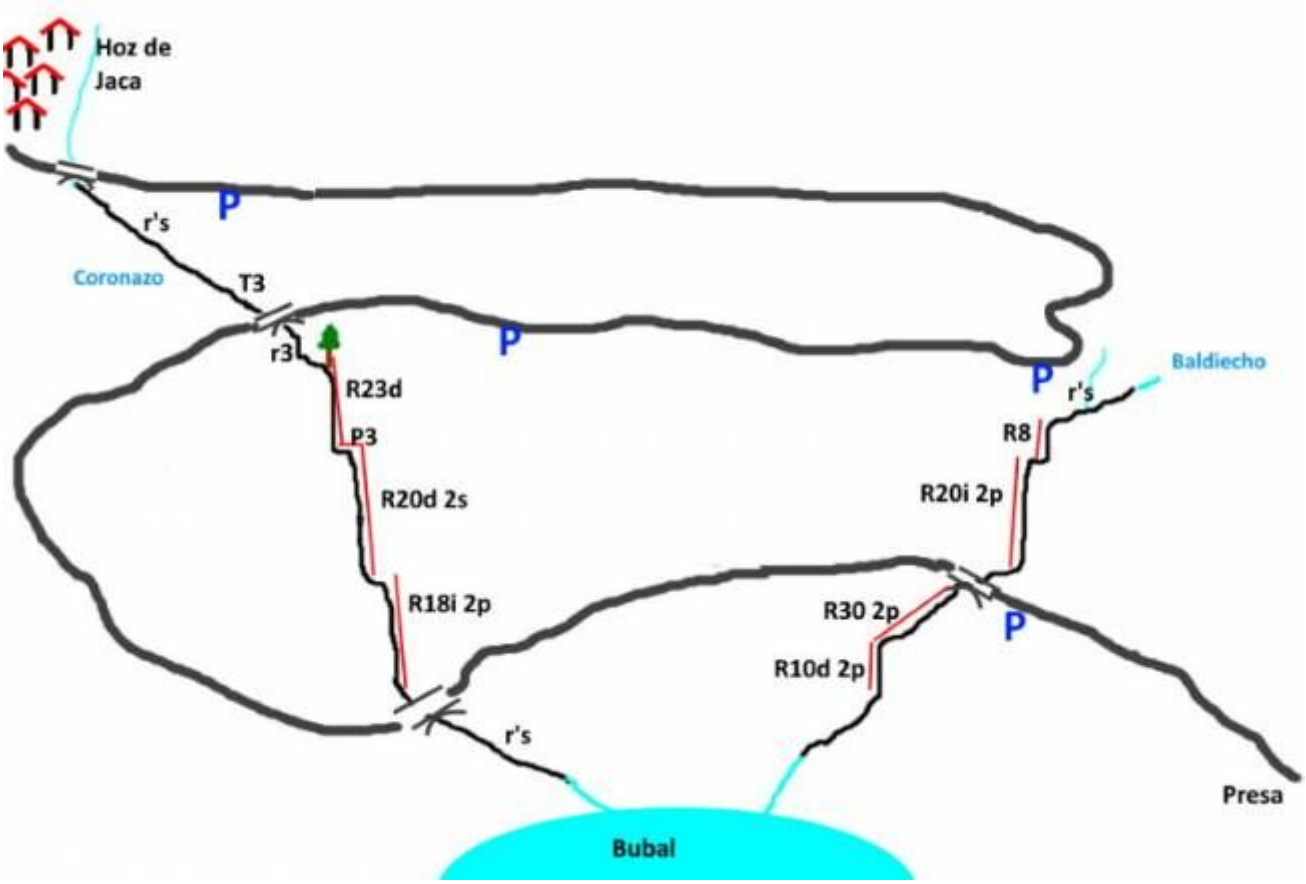

Coordinates:
Canyon Start 42.6908 -0.3061
