Amazing canyon! The approach is very steep and around 1 hour and 15 minutes to the first rappel. We went in the woods through the entrance and went straight up and followed what was on canyonlog. We (re)bolted the canyon and put around 16 new bolts in the canyon. Everywhere mono points. Now you don’t need to use any tree in the canyon ◫ The first rappel is still with a lot of friction. The maillon needs to be changed there (we changed one and removed the rope that was there because it was broken) The topo is NOT correct and there are way more rappels then on the topo. Around 16-18 rappels. We put the anchors at almost any drop, so if you can’t find them then you probably need a SL (from a three or bolt that we placed) to go to the anchor or the anchor is just around a bolder. The last two drops we climbed down but can also be bolted for the next team that wants to go in. It took us 6 hours in the canyon with a team of 5 with bolting and everything. Very amazing canyon and definitely worth visiting!!!
