Summary: (machine translated)
Also known as rasa or clot de Foubes, it is a simple route, almost collector's, which may have some interest in the rainy season with the torrent forming small waterfalls in its many jumps.

Hydrology:

Access: (machine translated)
We are located in Berga on the C16 or in Solsona. In both cases you have to take the C26 that joins them.
In the pk 135,1 the cami del Panta or in the 135,4 to Sant Metges (better option). In the second case we will park next to the church. In the first case about 500m from the detour, next to the reservoir to which we will go up from the church.

Approach: (machine translated)
From the church we will go up to the reservoir to take the track that takes us to the reservoir. Just before the dam we can descend to the riverbed or from the railing of the dam we can do a rappel.

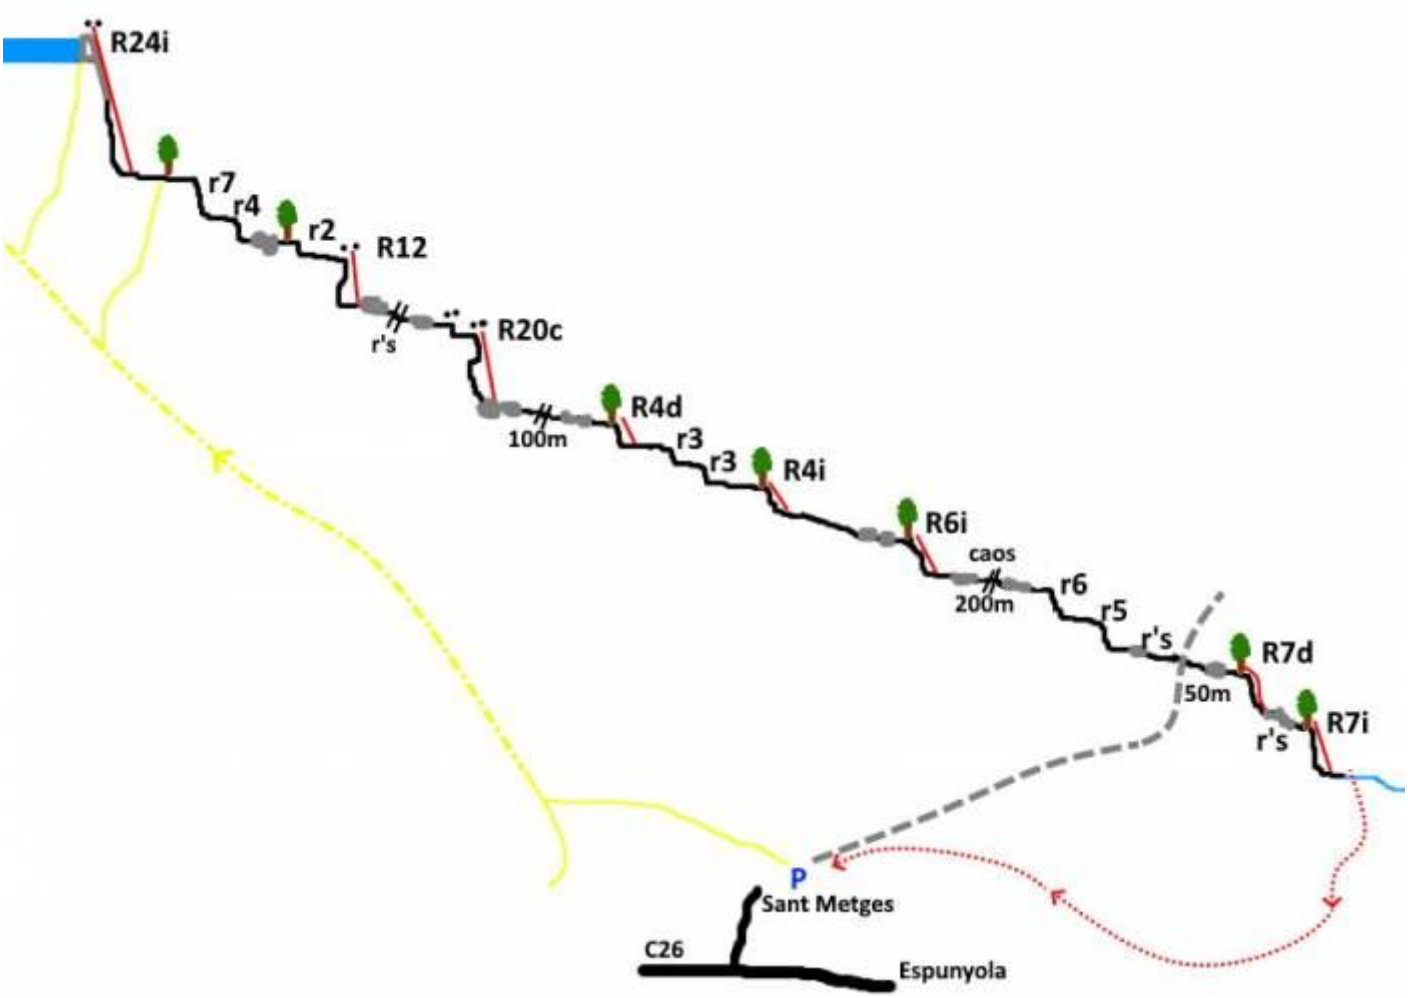

Tour: (machine translated)
Simple descent with opening and natural equipment.

Return: (machine translated)
We can return by the obvious path of red marks that crosses the stream and that leaves us on the track of the church.
If we continue the two remaining rappels we will have to look for a little obvious and somewhat losing path that goes off to the right.
