Summary: (machine translated)
Small torrent ideal for spring with flow. It can be used to start canyoning although all its rappels are natural.

Hydrology:

Access: (machine translated)
From Ripoll to Sant Joan de les Abadesses by the N260, once here we will turn left to Ogassa by the GIV-5211. Once in Ogassa follow the road to St Martí de Surroca. Once past Ca l'Enric we have the detour to the left towards the Collada de les Aiades, Can Coll and the Mil Colinas. It is a cemented track, very narrow, that winds between the mountains through green meadows to the pass. We will park here (maybe we can park closer to Can Coll).

Approach: (machine translated)
We will continue on foot along the track to Can Coll through a pleasant downhill walk and from here we can go through the meadows or along the track that surrounds Can Coll to catch our torrent.

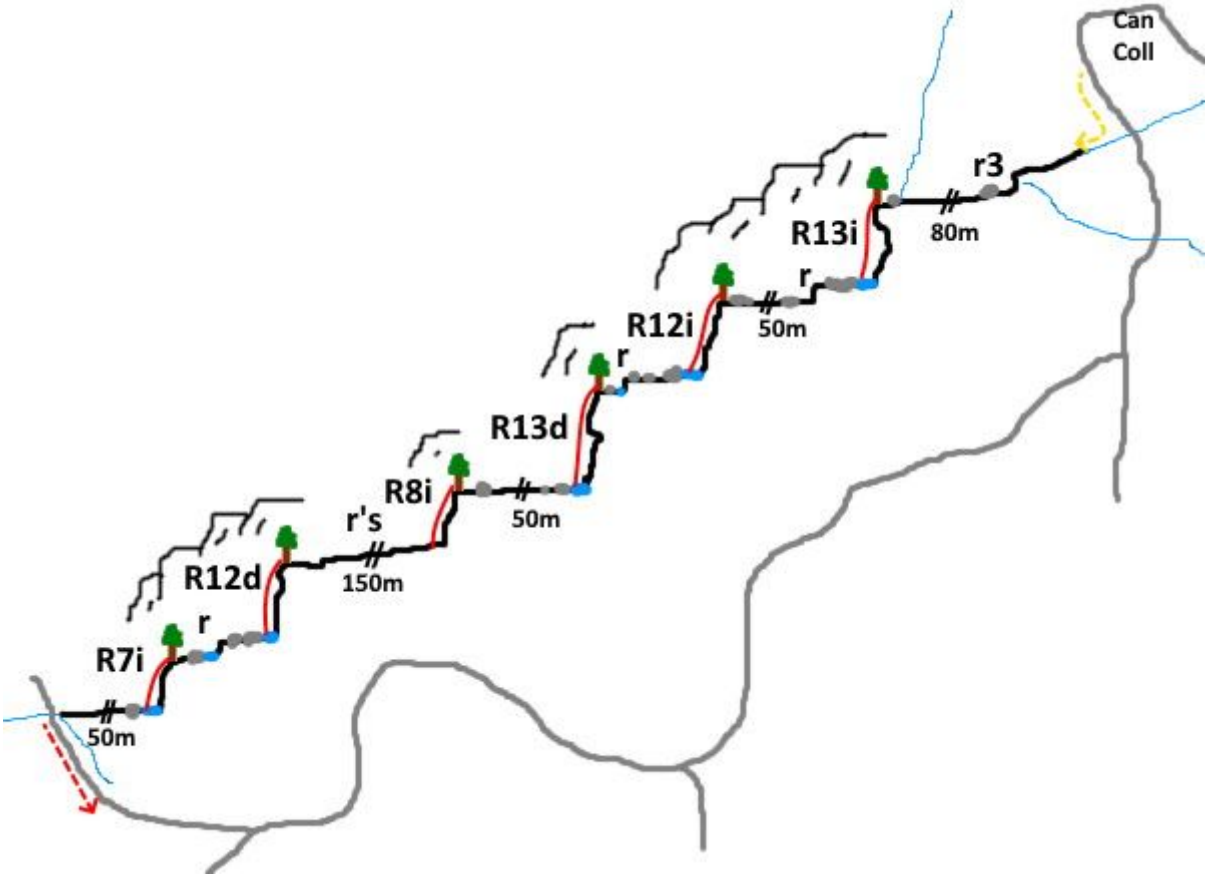

Tour: (machine translated)
A first stretch of walking until we find the tributary on the left that comes from the pass, from here we will go into a small box where we will find small rappels to the end.

Return: (machine translated)
After the last rappel we will find an old track that we will take to the left, always ascending our way through forests. We will find a couple of crossroads of tracks that we will take to the left until the last one that will place us below Can Coll, on the access track.
