Alpine rappel canyon

Hydrology:

Access: (machine translated)
From Bagnères-de-Luchon we first take the D125, then later the D46 towards Superbagnères. Where the road starts to wind up from the Lys valley to the right, we stay in the valley and take the D46a, passing Bordes du Lys and Bourdales towards the end of the valley (E-Werk du Portillon). Before the road crosses the Lys to the eastern bank, we park our car in a hiking parking lot to the left of the road.

Approach: (machine translated)

Tour: (machine translated)
Relatively open canyon that dips several times in short canyon sections.

Return: (machine translated)
See map sketch in "Photo Gallery" ; Continuation of the descent in Calahoure inferiore recommended.

Automatisch importiert von Descente-Canyon.com für Canyon Calahoure (supérieur) Canyon très glissant au départ (algues vertes), plus de relais R13 entres les deux R41 mais plutôt un rappel autour de R30. L'avant dernier relais C8, relais chaîné mais plus qu'un point (un écrou de parti). De gros cailloux non stables dans le canyon, ça parpine. Enchaîné ensuite avec la partie inf.
