Or ravine of the Boca Pescá are some of the many names of this dry ravine, only in torrential rains it catches water. A few long rappels, many others that can be climbed, easy access and an enviable environment in which to spend the day, the recreational area of the river Dílar.

Hydrology:

Access: (machine translated)
Situating us in Granada we will have to go towards the south to the village of Dílar, to which we will arrive from the highway by the GR3301 or from Granada by the GR3209.
Once in the village we will go straight ahead along the main street following the signs to the Dílar River, to the picnic area of Los Alayos and to the nature area. We will go to the end until the picnic area and we will park in the enabled area that is just in front of the exit of our ravine.

Approach: (machine translated)
We follow the trail along the orographic right of the river Dílar for 1km until the junction that takes us up to boca Pescá, we have a kilometer of zigzagging climb, when we reach the 1200m elevation in the right curve of the trail we will leave the trail and cross this dry riverbed to go to the pass that is left to our left. Once in the pass we will only have to go down this riverbed in search of the first difficulties.

Tour: (machine translated)
See mole

Return: (machine translated)
We arrived at the access road to the recreational area almost in front of the parking lot.
