Summary: (machine translated)
Small but beautifully shaped rappel canyon, usually dry

Hydrology:

Access: (machine translated)
At the large traffic circle in the northeast of Pollença, we take the MA10 towards Lluc, Soller. After 5.3 km, turn left onto the old road from Pollença to Lluc (Cami vell de Pollença a Lluc). The road is soon only passable for residents, small parking facilities on the left before the bridge.

Approach: (machine translated)
Follow the road for about 2km into the valley floor. We now follow the "GR221" hiking trail for about an hour up to an altitude of approx. 400m. Here you can see a winding road in the olive grove below. Go down to this road and cross to the northwest. Follow the increasingly deteriorating road into the dry streambed (last path).
Alternatively, you can follow the GR221 up to an altitude of around 440m, descending to the right in a left-hand bend until you reach the road mentioned above (tracks and a few cairns)

Tour: (machine translated)
Dry mini-gorge in wildly karstified and eroded rock scenery. In 2024 the belays were plentiful and in excellent condition. Gorges and open passages alternate. At the penultimate waterfall, hanging belay on the right.

Return: (machine translated)
After the exit of the canyon, we do not climb out to the right onto the grounds of the houses of Can Melcion, but walk in the streambed (or at best directly along its edge) down to a height of 130m. A massive-looking fence can be bypassed directly in the streambed (metal construction can be moved downstream). Then we can exit to the right on a path crossing the streambed and are immediately on the road and at the car.
