Specialities:

Gear:
Ropes: 2x50m

Summary:
Varied canyon with many pools and an high pitch.

Hydrology:

Access:
From Lecco take the road for Valsassina up to Ballabio and than to Introbio. At the entry of the town park on the big park parking next to the bridge of Acquaduro.

Approach:
Cross the bridge and keep the right, following the road and the white-red path marking, always following the indications for Rifugio Buzzoni. One main deviation during the path (keep the rigth) and a couple of crossings with the forest road, after the second one (when encountering the big black metal water pipe) just follow it up to the houses Baite Serra where the path leads directly into the streambed.

Tour:
The canyon begins with many small slides, then bigger pitches leading to the C47.
After the wood pedestrian bridge (entry of commercial part) many slides and smaller rappels and some jumps.

Return:
Once the last rocky part ends the streambed opens and it can be followed until a trail becomes visible on the right bank, more evident after a flood barrier and leading directly on the last part of the approach road that can be followed down to the bridge and the parking.

There are some beautifully carved sections—definitely worth checking out if you're in the area (machine translated)

Parked on the big parking on the bridge close to the exit and taken the path on the other side of the bridge, direction to Rifugio Buzzoni, a few times crossing the forest (access restricted and not in good conditions) and shortly after the second time reaching Baite Serra where you can enter. Season begin and medium/high flow, anyway not being a problem for any passage. Upper part joyful with many pools, toboggans and little jumps with cristal clear and cold water. Than a medium pitch leading to the 50m, having a deviation on -8m technical to reach cause slippery. After a wood pedestrian bridge another section starts, more discontinuous but with a beautiful long section all carved in rock and with many nice passages and pools. Only pity is wood around in many pools, some technical downclimbs cause missing anchors and many fixed ropes in place which are in very bad conditions and not to be trusted; for sure an emergency bolting equipment is recommended cause some passages can change or become impracticable with wood.. Lastly a little walk towards the flood protection wall where getting the path leading back to the town and bridge parking.
