Summary: (machine translated)
This is a recently opened canyon (2018), very enjoyable, simple, and with lots of rappels in which to teach and practice. It is almost impossible to see it with water unless we do it on a day of heavy rains.

Hydrology:

Access: (machine translated)
We have to get to Lorcha/L'Orxa. To do this we will leave the A7 by Muro de Alcoi.
From Muros, take the CV705 to Beniarres and L'Orxa, arrive at Beniarrés and turn right onto the CV701 to L'Orxa. At 300-400m from the village there is a road on the left, it is the old railway track. After 500m there is a track on the right that goes up the hillside to an esplanade from where there are magnificent views of the castle of Perputxent.

Approach: (machine translated)
We will see some milestones that, in a northerly direction, rise up the slope without a clear path. When we reach the upper "plain" we will see that it takes us to the east towards the head of the ravine. There we will see a stone in the shape of "menir of Obelix" from which begins

Tour: (machine translated)
Continuous canyon in which we will enjoy all the rappels except one that we will have on the way back.

Return: (machine translated)
We will leave by some milestones to the right to look for a small strip where we will have the last rappel with handrails. Then we will follow the milestones without losing height towards the car.
