Summary: (machine translated)
At the foot of Roque Nublo in the Natural Park Riscos de Tirajana we find this unique enclave that we will access from the hamlet of La Culata. Impressive trekking with magnificent to access this simple descent with rappels up to 54m but without great difficulty.
Great caution with rains

Hydrology:

Access: (machine translated)
On the GC60 we must head towards the municipality of Tejeda. At the height of the hamlet Lomo de los Santos we have the detour by the GC608 towards La Culata, which we will reach after 5km. We will park next to Nuestra Señora de Fátima.

Approach: (machine translated)
We will leave by the same street to take the S70 path to Roque Nublo on the right, we will cross the road again 100m later to leave it behind. After 800m, at the fork, we will go to the right, flanking under the rocks to pass over the bco la Peña and after 1500m from the fork we will leave the path to continue horizontally to the next riverbed which we will reach after another 150m. Here we will find the first rappels

Tour: (machine translated)
See topo
After the first rappels we exit to the right to return to the bco La Peña and face the long rappel.

Return: (machine translated)
After the last rappel we left to the right along a small path through the forest to a track that we crossed and continued along the path to the back of the hermitage.
