Specialities:

Gear:

Summary: (machine translated)
Also known as Cañada de los Trujillos, it is a dry and vertical ravine in which we can make a really curious approach.

Hydrology:

Access: (machine translated)
From the airport we go up the CV20 towards the Guarimiar ravine, just before p.k. 3 (Pastrana detour). 3 (Pastrana detour), about 200m before, on the left we can go to the bed of the ravine and park.
If we have two cars with the other one we will go up the ravine until the detour where we will take the small road that goes over the bridge over the ravine and we will go to the end.

Approach: (machine translated)
We will go up the bco de Santiago to Lo del Gato and from there to take the tunnel that crosses the mountain, then we will follow the path of the canal.
If we have parked in Guarimiar we will go up the path.
In both cases by the path to below Targa, from where we see the place where we have left the car down there, we will go down the Trujillo channel until we find the cut to rappel.

Tour: (machine translated)
See mole

Return: (machine translated)
We will continue to the bed of the ravine where we have parked.
