Summary: (machine translated)
Canyon opened by ECDC, they say that it is an initiation canyon in low water, and that it can acquire notoriety in the rainy season given the carrying capacity of its large basin. Open, running through a beautiful granite valley and with a couple of remarkable waterfalls, it is an option to consider.

Hydrology:

Access: (machine translated)
We have to get to Lobios.
For it by the OU-540, we turn to the OU-312 and continue towards the thermal baths of the Caldo river, shortly before we arrive to Vilameá and we turn to the Hermitage of Nuestra Señora de Xurés, where we will park the car.

Approach: (machine translated)
We will leave from the hermitage by the track that goes up the valley of the river Vilameá, we will cross a bridge to go up by the orographic right.
We will go up to 950m altitude, here we have on the right a waterfall, soon the path approaches the stream, time to get in. If we continue we arrive at the crossing with the main track and the bridge.

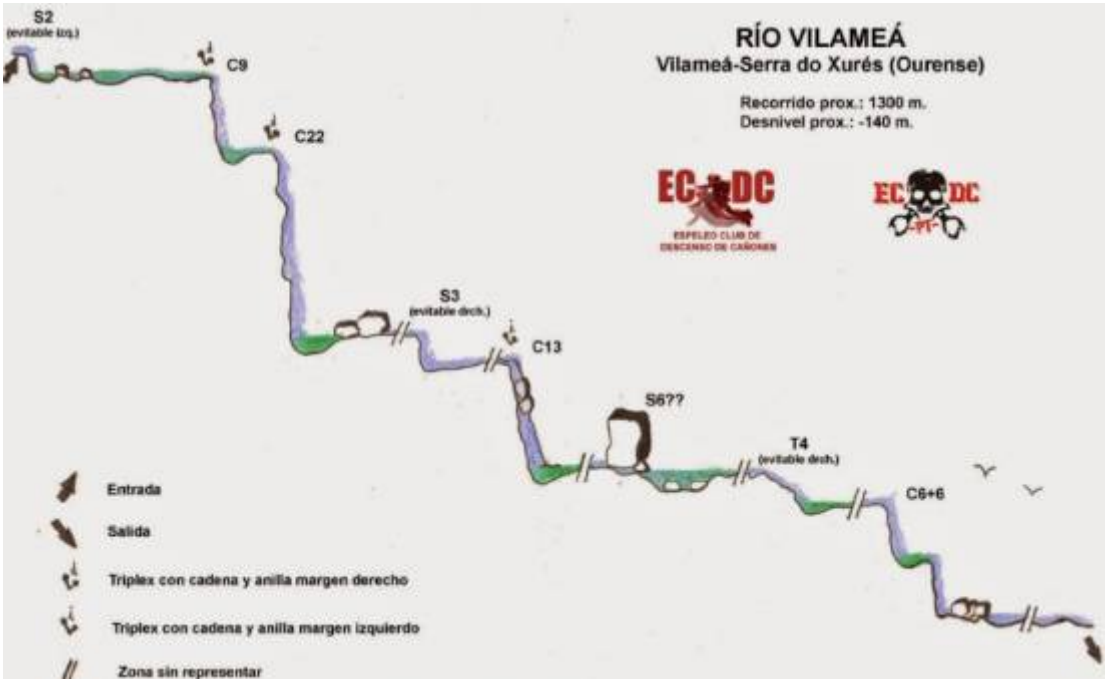

Tour: (machine translated)
See mole

Return: (machine translated)
After the last 6+6 waterfall with an intermediate pool, the slope softens and the vegetation allows an easier escape to the right, we go up and reach the access track where we will return.
