Access: (machine translated)
As for Wadi Al Naqma: We turn off highway "17" (Muscat - Sur) at Dibab and drive on a dirt road up the Wadi Al Arbeyen river. After 15.5 km we reach the village of Al Suwayh and park our car here. See also Google aerial view in "Photo Gallery

Approach: (machine translated)
The first long pool is bypassed on the left slope along a clear path; only then does the trail continue along the riverbed.

Tour: (machine translated)
First up the wadi, at the turning point (370m altitude) it de outward way back to the car (100m altitude). See also photos & video.

Walked the wadi as a relaxation day. You can do it without equipment, swimming gear would be ideal as you have to swim from time to time. There are several paths on the right, in the middle and on the left, marked with red or blue cairns. There are fixed ropes to climb up at the waterfalls. If you like block climbing with a bit of cooling off or want to go without much equipment, this is a nice excursion. Rather not real canyoning. (machine translated)
