Summary: (machine translated)
Re-equipped with chemicals in May 2023....
The first known descent was made by Marzo, Dany, Javi and Andrés.

Hydrology:

Access: (machine translated)
From Argelita we take the road to Ludiente and leave the car in a sharp curve to the left.

Approach: (machine translated)
With a car:
From the parking, we go down to the Villahermosa river and go up the Dama ravine until we reach the last rappel of the DaMa ravine, just before reaching this rappel, on our left (orographic right) we will see a steep path, we take it and following the milestones, we will reach the beginning of the ravine.
The approach is steep, but it is only walking, we only have to climb at two points and there are two fixed ropes.
In some part of the approach there is no defined path, the track is good as an orientation but you have to go looking for the best area and with less vegetation.
With two cars:
We will leave a car in the same point that I have explained for a car and with the second car we will return towards Argelita and before arriving we will take the road that goes up to the Mas del Perxano. once past the Mas, on the left there is a dirt track in good condition that we will take to reach the second parking. From there we will take a track that goes down, after a while it becomes a path, we will pass the ravine of DaMa and we will arrive at the entrance of the Barranco del Mas del Zapo, the path is marked with milestones.

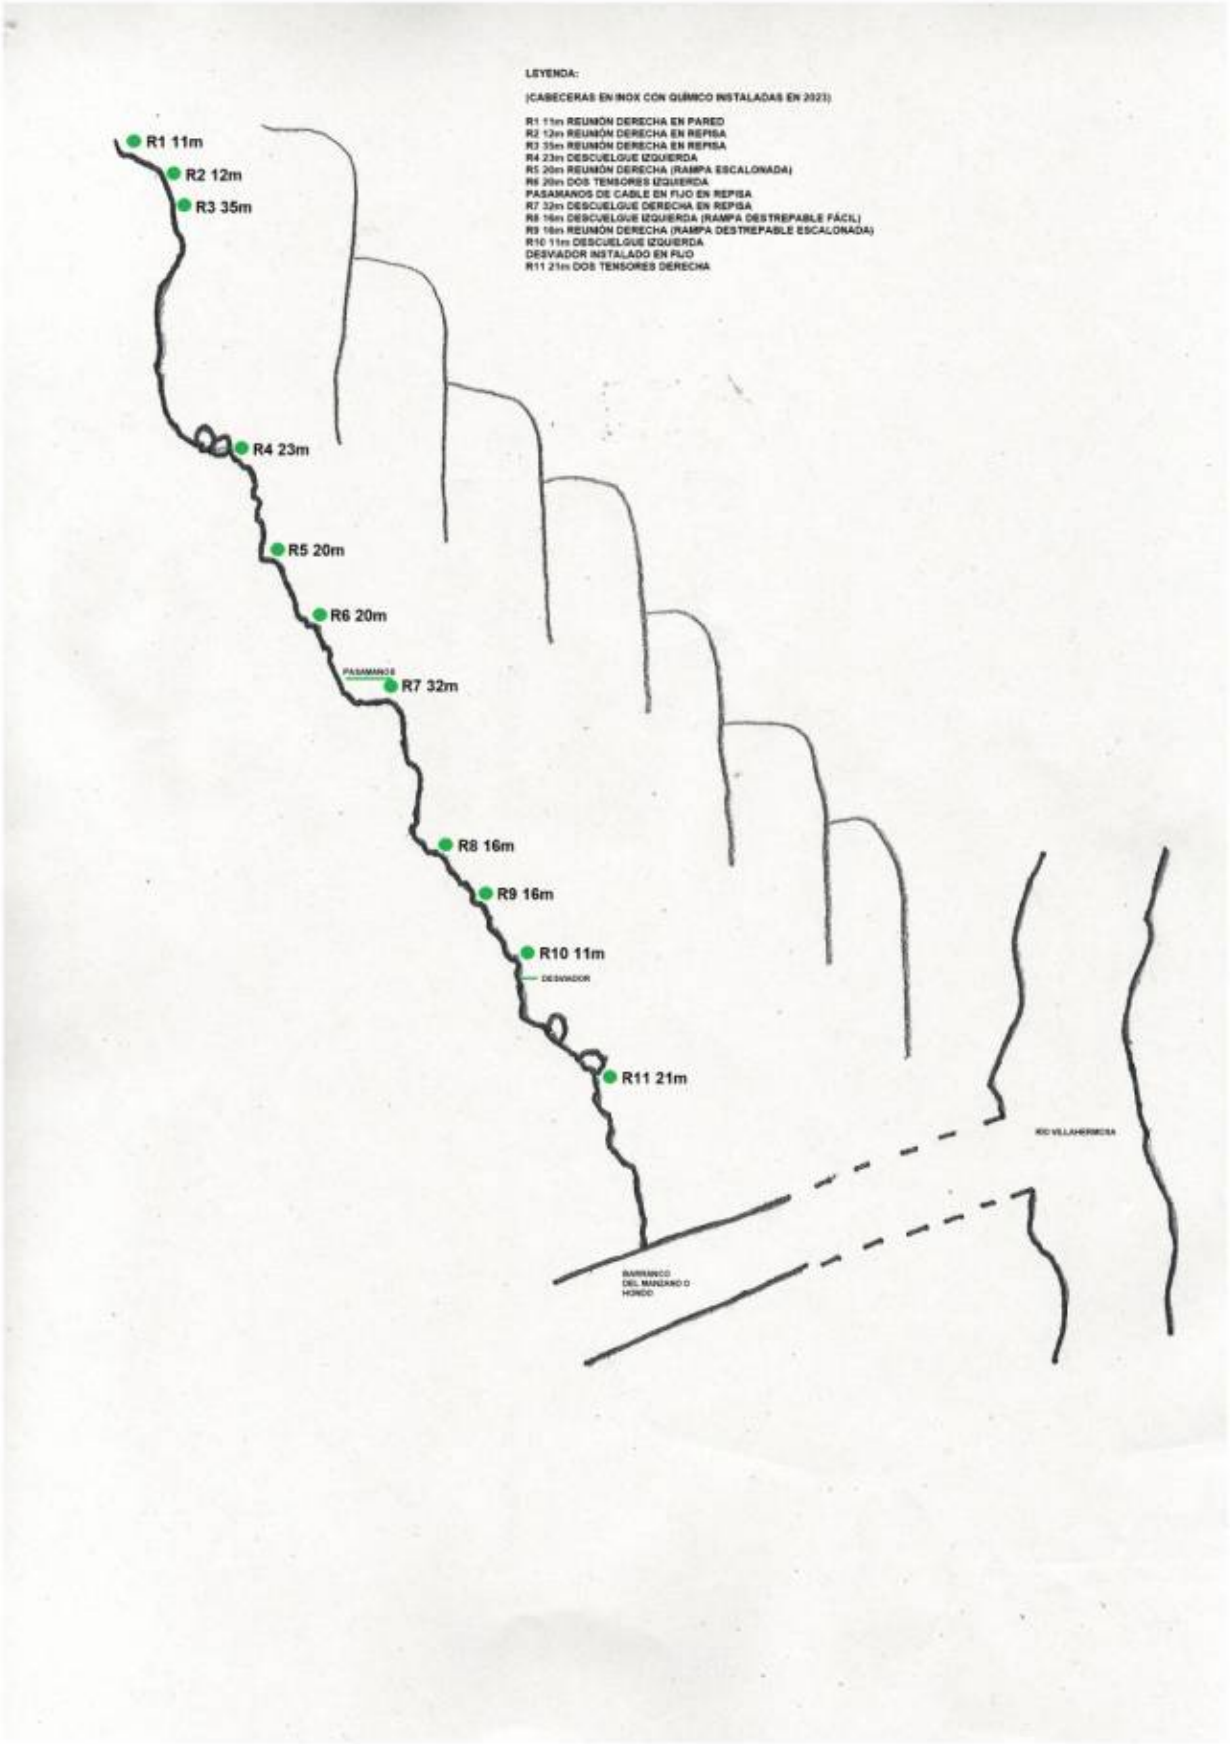

Tour: (machine translated)
Retrofitted with chemicals in May 2023. Fairly continuous descent.

Return: (machine translated)
The ravine flows into the Manzano ravine, and in the area where there are no rappels, we can only continue along the B. del Manzano to the Villahermosa river, cross it (beware that sometimes it carries water) and climb up to the parking lot.
