Summary: (machine translated)
Nice descent facing the Tibi reservoir. Great views, environment and a very well installed canyon, recently in Dec 22.
Best to avoid summer, it is south facing and can be very hot.

Hydrology:

Access: (machine translated)
We will have to get to Tibi, for example by the A7 exit 480 to take the CV805.
We will arrive to Tibi by the CV810 and we will follow it towards Xixona (we can arrive by this other side), at the exit of the village, after the curves and just about the p.k. 8 we have the detour to the reservoir of Tibi and the Moorish castle. We will go down this small road until the end to the parking area.

Approach: (machine translated)
We will leave by the track, which is then a path that heads east towards the pass of Andornia and once here by the path that climbs to La Moleta right along the mountain range.
At about 650m altitude we will see a milestone and blue marks on the left, follow them to a pine tree with a blue mark, just below is the installation of the first rappel.

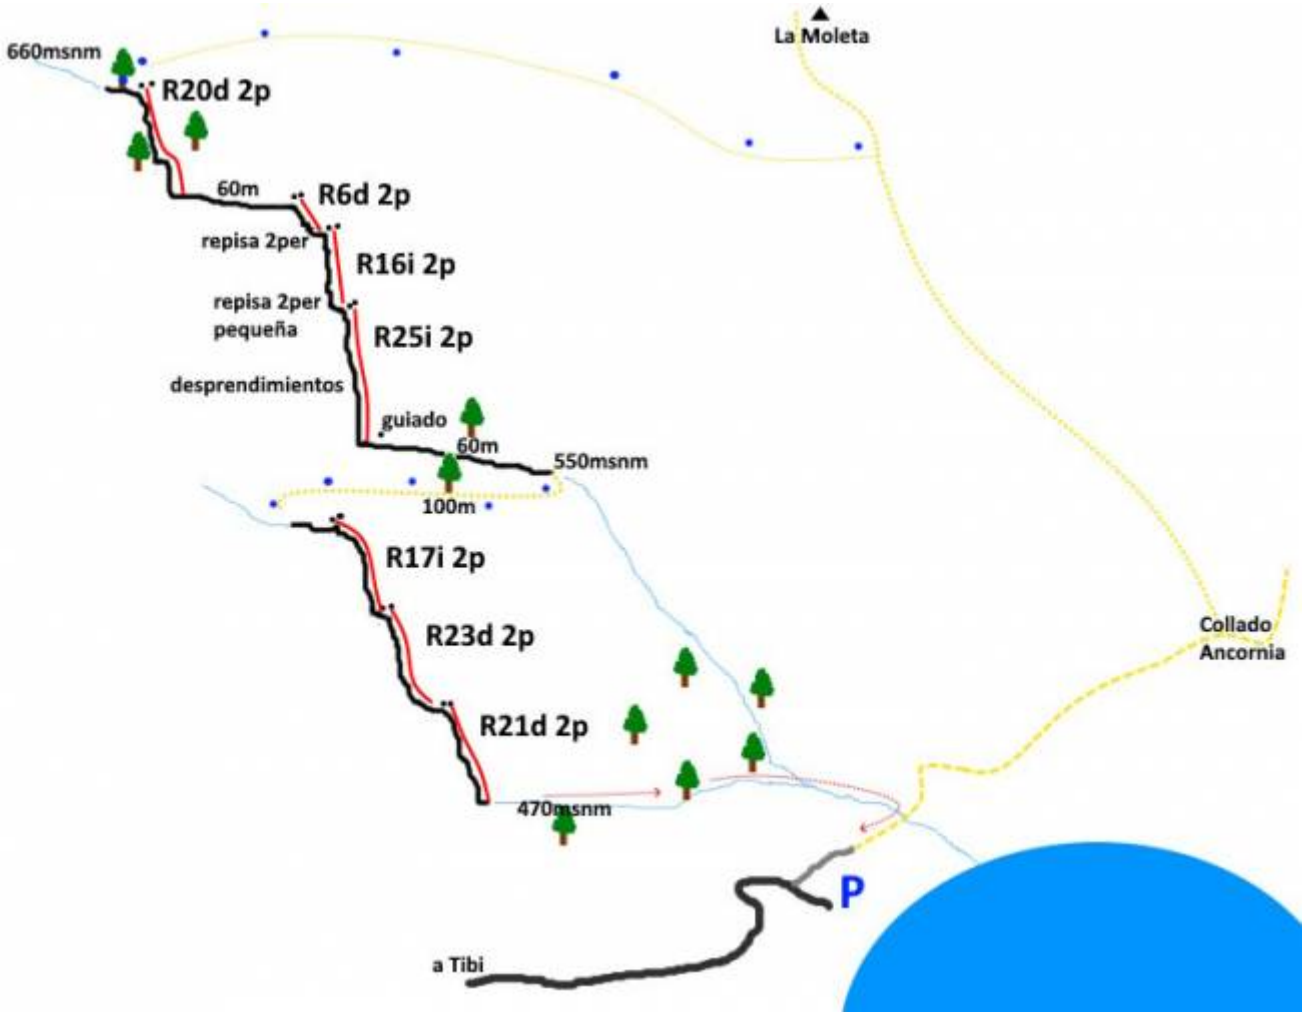

Tour: (machine translated)
Three rappel zones, the first rappel with a ledge in the middle, somewhat dressed, will leave us in the riverbed through which we will walk about 60 or 70m to the next vertical. This second vertical has 3 rappels, the last one the longest, with two intermediate ledges, the second narrower, which is better to go down with up to two people per meeting. At the end of the third there is an option to make a guide to avoid the landslides that can occur.
We will continue walking another 60m until we find another milestone and blue marks on the right to take us to the tributary on the right, about 100m of crossing, here we will find the 3rd vertical, with another 3 rappels that leaves us now at the foot of the walls.

Return: (machine translated)
We will follow the riverbed to the access path, on the right the parking lot.
