Summary: (machine translated)
Little traveled canyon, with an access somewhat lost and an interesting development with good flow.

Hydrology:

Access: (machine translated)
On the N260 going up from Sabiñanigo to Biescas. At the height of pk 511 we have the detour to the right to Oliván and Orós. After 100m we turn left to Oliván and then right, always towards Oliván.
Once we reach the village we will cross it and continue straight on along the track that goes up the river on its orographic left. When we cross the river over the bridge of the mill two curves later we will be at the exit of the ravine. We park where we can

Approach: (machine translated)
We follow the track for 200m and at the sharp left curve we will look for the way up through the Ainielles arch to take the PR that leads to the abandoned village. Before arriving and crossing the stream we turn left on a zigzagging path that leads to a pass. Follow the ridge for 10min until a junction where the main path goes to the right and we will turn left keeping the height to go to look for the head of the ravine.

Tour: (machine translated)
Descent of long rappels but without too much difficulty unless there is a high flow. After the junction with the PR comes the most interesting part of the ravine so it could be done only this second part and thus save us almost an hour of approach.

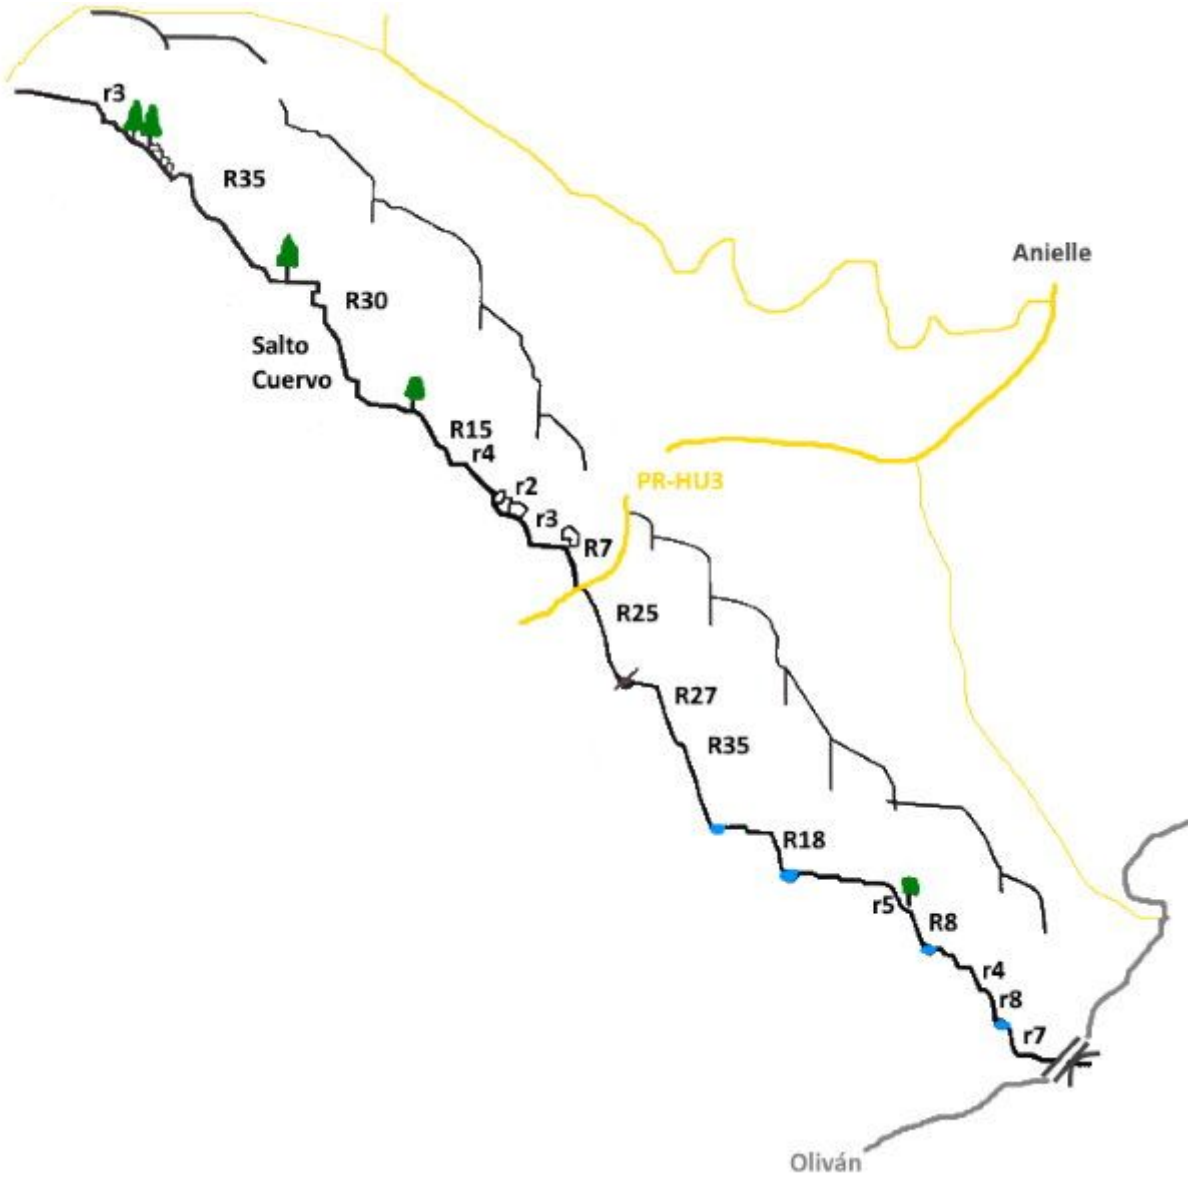

Return: (machine translated)
You reach the track bridge
