Summary: (machine translated)
Rappel canyon to the sea, usually dry

Hydrology:

Access: (machine translated)
We leave Soller on the MA10 in the direction of Deia. After passing Deia, we continue on the MA10 in the direction of Valldemossa. About 15 km after leaving Soller, we come to the Monestir de Miramar and park our car here.

Approach: (machine translated)
2 possibilities: \n\n1. Either through the monastery complex (for a fee of a few euros, see - also - during opening hours: https://www.mallorcatipps.com/sehenswuerdigkeiten/son-marroig-und-kloster-miramar/) to the Sa Ferradura viewpoint and then along the wire fence in an easterly direction until the access to the Guix stream valley opens up.\n \n2. We park the car on the edge of the MA10 at the level of the access to the Torrent Son Gallard (450m north of the access to the monastery) and then enter the Guix via the first steps of the Son Gallard and a cross-path. We come to the cross-path after the 8th rappel (13m), if you include the rappel from the road.

Tour: (machine translated)
See photos and videos. Abseiling sequence (Guix only): 8m - 15m - 35m - 30m - 7m - 30m -17m. The tour exits at the seashore.

Return: (machine translated)
First follow the tracks of the fishermen along the sea to the left, then on the Cami de ses Vinyes in a WSW direction, following the green arrows. We reach a tarred road, go up 2 hairpin bends on it and then take the path to the north towards the monastery, again marked with green arrows.\nSome maps also show a direct ascent to the monastery on the orographic left side of the Guix (including https://www.wikiloc.com/canyoneering-trails/torrentes-de-son-gallard-y-del-guix-13973305), but it would still need to be clarified whether this path is also suitable for the return ascent.
