Summary: (machine translated)
Impressive ravine in the Anaga area, little traveled, boxed and original, so much so that we will have to check the tides to know when we can descend it. The end is made on a beach that only exists at low tide and in which we will have two return options, by sea that we go to look for or around the cliffs to climb a losing path, decomposed and somewhat compromised steps.
Quite an adventure!

Hydrology:

Access: (machine translated)
Getting in the area of Anaga by the TF12.
In the pk. 21 we have the detour to Taborno and Las Carboneras by the TF145, after the p.k. 3 we will leave the Taborno detour to one side and we will continue to Las Carboneras and Chimanada.
We will pass the Carboneras and continue to Chimanada, just before reaching the chapel there is a left curve with a place to park on the right.
The return car, if we return by boat, we will leave it in Punta del Hidalgo.

Approach: (machine translated)
On the trail that heads north, at first towards the houses and then following the mountain ridge... quite a loser (follow track).

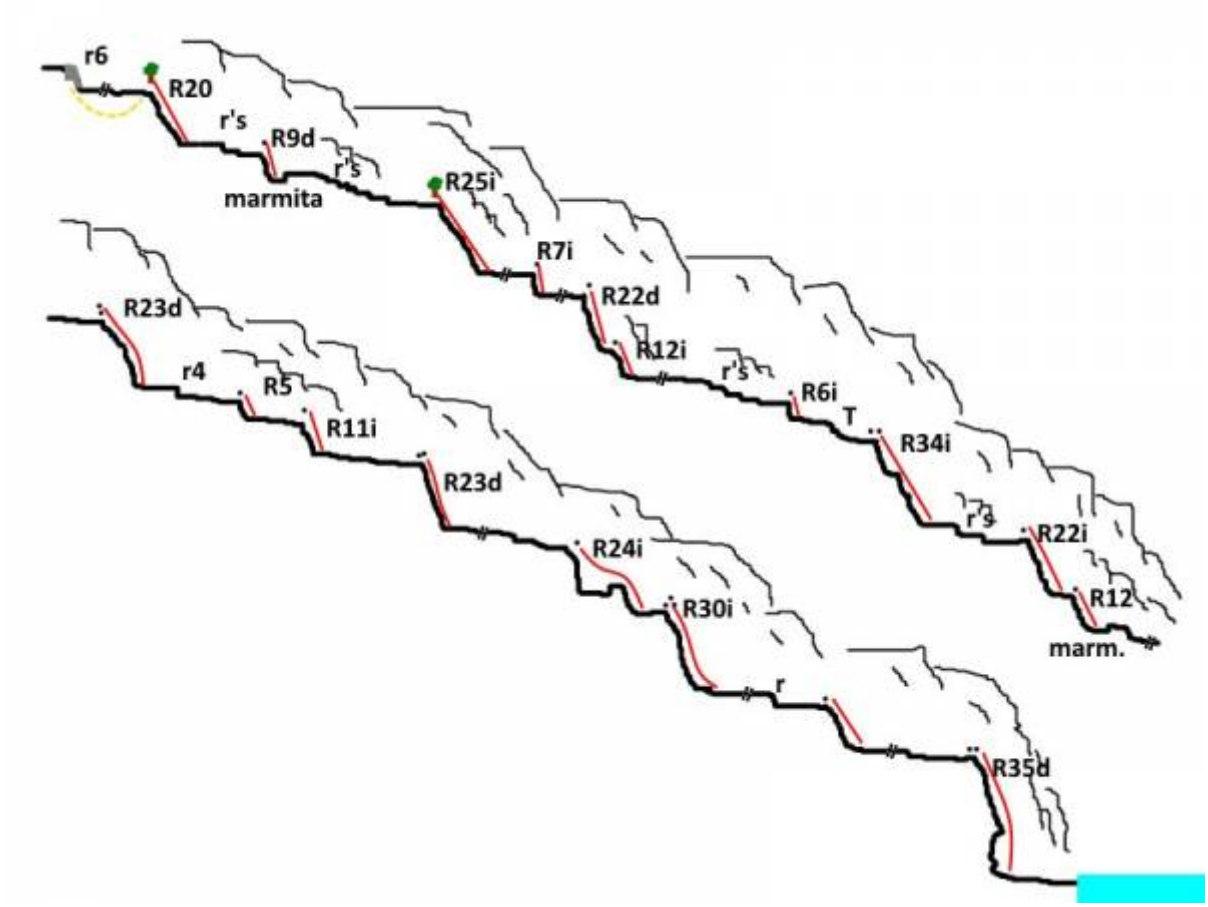

Tour: (machine translated)
See mole

Return: (machine translated)
Better by boat, the ascent is not free of difficulties and danger...
