Summary: (machine translated)
The course of the Fouillet has excavated small gorges in the schists that will allow us a day of jumps, dexterity and rappels in an unbeatable environment. Well formed but without continuity, there are three parts of which the intermediate one is of no great interest.

Hydrology:

Access: (machine translated)
We have to get to Aulus les Bains, for this we arrive at Saint Girons and go up the Salat river until we reach Oust. We turn left at the Erce detour and continue to Aulus. Once past the village we take the D8 towards Guzet-Neige and col de Latrape. At the first sharp right turn we see the signs for Cascade d'Ars. We continue and at the next sharp turn to the right we park. Fouillet river.

Approach: (machine translated)
You have to go up the trail that starts at the Fouillet waterfall.

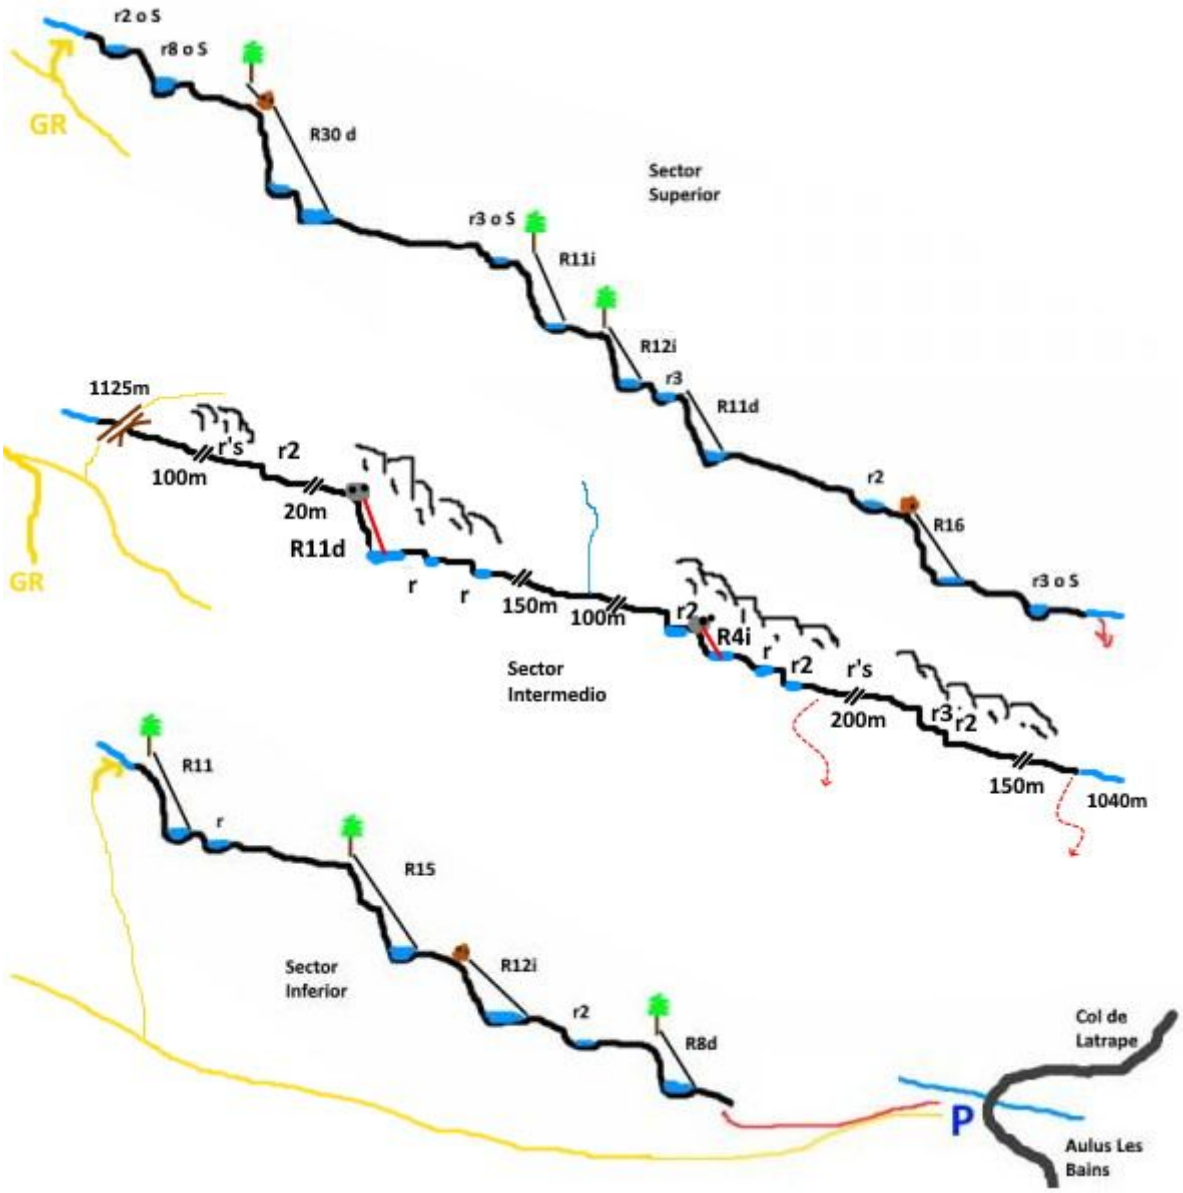

Tour: (machine translated)
The descent is not very continuous and we will have to go in and out of the river to advance. The intermediate zone is not very interesting.

Return: (machine translated)
To the right is the access road, both to link sectors and to leave and return to the car.
