Summary: (machine translated)
High alpine small canyon with speleo character

Hydrology:

Access: (machine translated)
We are coming from Chur on the A18. At the end of the highway, we turn right towards Flims, Laax, Disentis. We drive around Flims in the tunnel and then turn right before the water reservoir into the Laax parking lot at the foot of the mountain railroads. From here we take the Postbus up to Berghaus Nagens (2134m). Runs Mon - Sun between 8.00 am and 5.00 pm from Laax Bergbahnen to the Nagens mountain station 6 times a day. Last descent: Alp Nagens 17.00 hrs.

Approach: (machine translated)
We take the slope in northwestern direction uphill. After 1100m, a track on the left goes off, after 2400m we are at the entry E2 (2365m altitude). If we want to enter at E1, we continue on the slope until a side slope turns off to the right. Follow it over the first stream to the entry E1 (2445m altitude).

Tour: (machine translated)
Not very deep canyon, a narrow section follows the previous one. From E2 then the more interesting section. Sometimes the view to the sky is blocked. Finally, the canyon dives completely underground. Here we get off. For Caver here would be an activity field.

Return: (machine translated)
Either uphill to the spur slope and the approach trail or pathless downhill in the chute and then to the inn at the water reservoir.\nThen take the shuttle bus back down to Laax.
