Specialities:

Gear:

Summary: (machine translated)
Dry canyon, somewhat vertical, short and fun. It could be used to start taking great care in the R40.
In summer avoid the central hours and hot days, in the afternoon it is in the shade.

Hydrology:

Access: (machine translated)
Access to the village of La Aparecida (Orihuela)
On the N340 between Santomera and Orihuela. We will enter the village of La Aparecida and we will go to the cemetery where we will park.

Approach: (machine translated)
Access to the Muertos, Sanes and Paleras banks
The cemetery is located just at the exit of the bcos de los Muertos and Palera.
We will look for the path that leaves from the curve and that goes to half height, it is the PR CV 59 that goes up to the Orihuela mountain range, after gaining the first meters in a westerly direction, it enters the valley of Sanes changing the course to the north. The trail continues to climb with a couple of steps a little more delicate until you reach the head of Sanes, here we turn right onto a path towards a pine tree that is seen next to the riverbed.
From this pine tree the descent begins.

Tour: (machine translated)
After the first rappel, we will have an area of climbing skills to approach the 40m vertical, which is fractioned, where we will have to install the access handrail. We will have to be clear if we want to split or not for rope management. Just below we have the next much shorter rappel, which leads us to another rappel with a possible diverter to the left. We will do the next rappel with the possibility of setting up a guide, before the last two rappels.

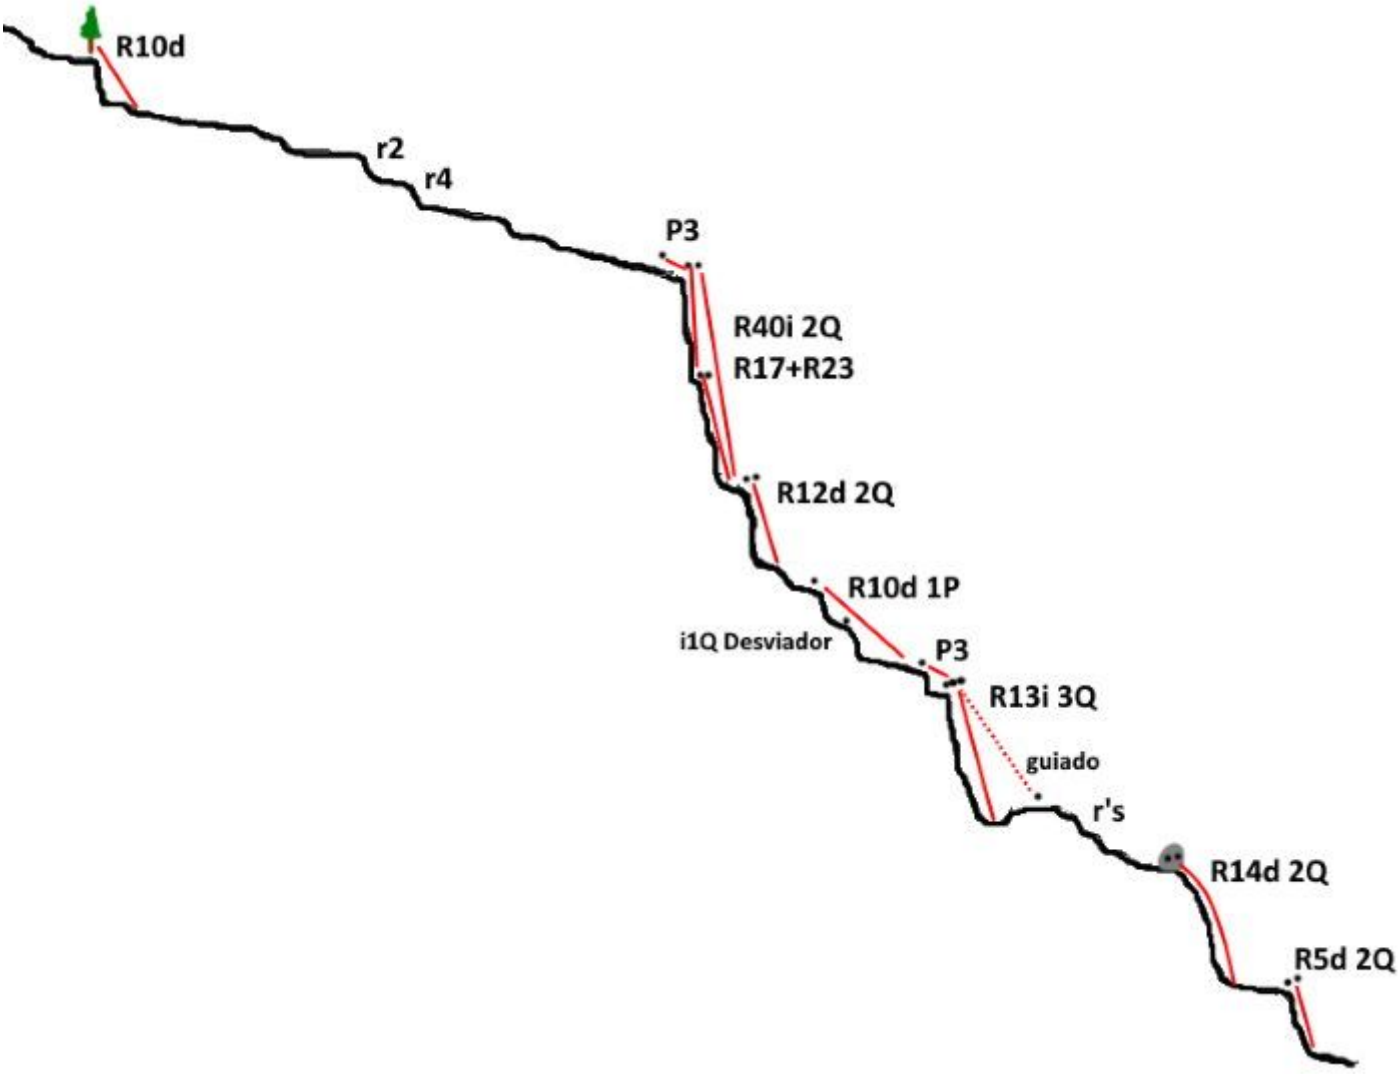

Return: (machine translated)
We continue along the ravine to the cemetery.
