Hydrology: (machine translated)
Water catchment

Flow rate at low water: approx. 200 liters. Several 3000 m high peaks tower above the catchment area. The "Cascade du Ray" waterfall has no influence on the flow rate, which therefore remains roughly the same. The following C5 can be bypassed...

Access: (machine translated)
From Nice, drive to Roquebillière. Drive up to Belvédère and continue for 3.5 km through the Gordolasque valley until you reach a bridge that crosses the valley at the foot of the Ray waterfall. Park your vehicle.

Approach: (machine translated)
Continue on foot along the road for 900 m to the next bridge.

Tour: (machine translated)
Start behind the bridge. R4, then the large waterfall, the descent of which is via the left-hand vein with sufficient flow.
C14, then C45 with MC for the start channel, nice trough at the finish. If the current is too strong, you can start from a tree above.
Possibly continue over an extremely wet C5, under the bridge and 200 m further on.

You can leave the canyon, even after the C14.
Equipment: Be sure to check to descend the C45 via the chute.

Pay attention to the current.
Combine this tour with Gordolasque, which is a few kilometers upstream.
You don't have to walk for either tour with the shuttle bus.

Return: (machine translated)
At the exit of the last ascent, climb as far as possible to the road 50 m above, then to the car.
