Summary: (machine translated)
Open canyon, ideal after rains, when we will have a trickle of water to enjoy this descent. Perfect to start

Hydrology:

Access: (machine translated)
From Alcover road that goes up to Montral and continues to Capafonts, after 21 km we find a track just to the left of the Tarrascona bridge where we park the car.

Approach: (machine translated)
From where we left the car, we follow the road towards Capafonts, about 100m until we find a track on the left that we take.
We follow it until it crosses a path, which we will follow, it is the path that passes through the Foradada de Capafonts, once past the Foradada we find a fork in the path (sign), the one on the right goes to the Cova de Grevol and the other one we will take on the left that goes to the Portel de Mariangela. When we are already up we will find a fork, we take the path on the right and a steep but short climb leaves us in Pla de los Mollats, just follow the singlera, passing through the tributary with a parabolt, we continue about 100m and find the entrance to the ravine.

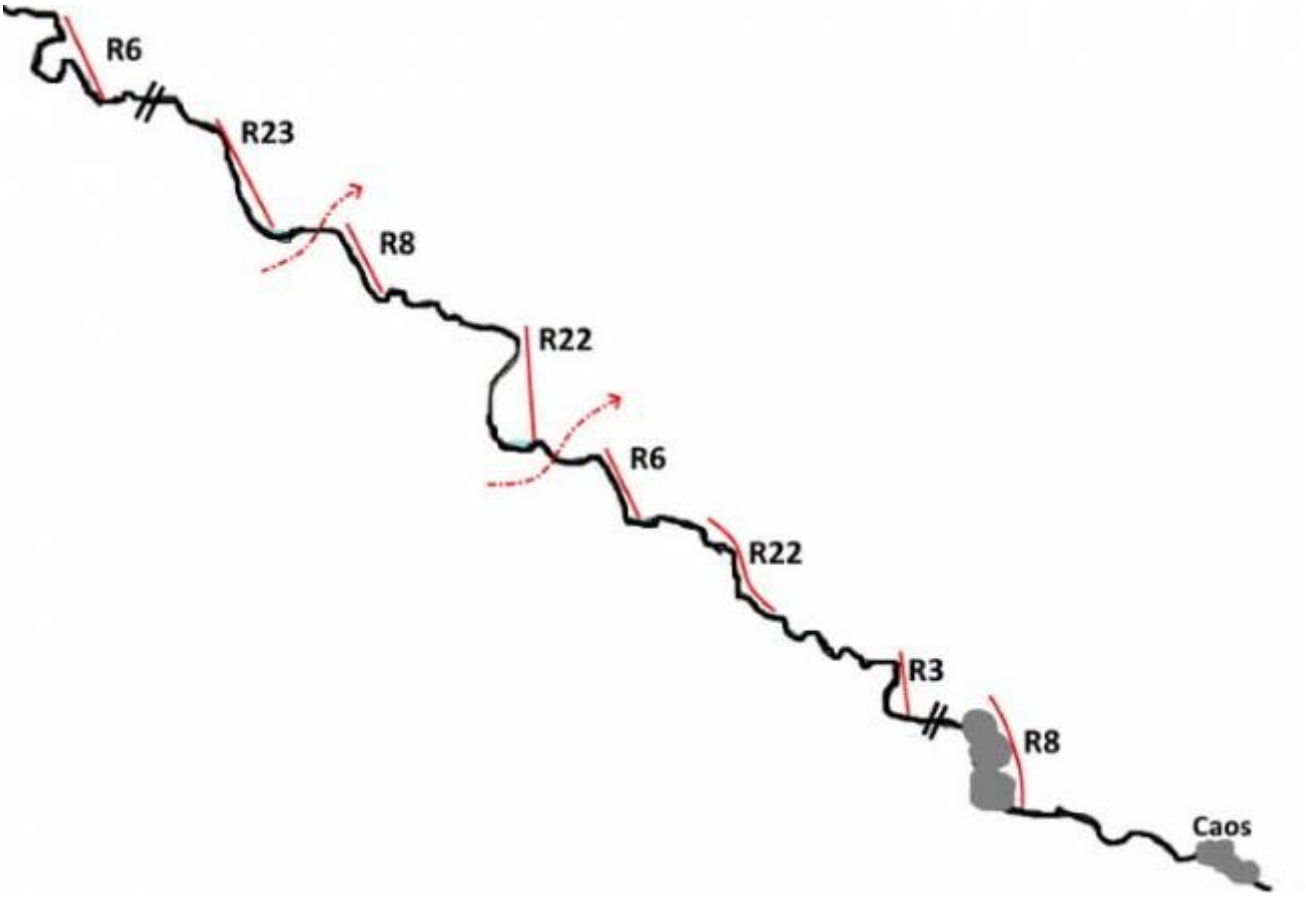

Tour: (machine translated)
The first section with a lot of undergrowth but it passes relatively well following the riverbed, then a succession of short rappels, the longest of 23m, penultimate rappel equipped with a natural on roots. after the last rappel a chaos of blocks with several cliffs until finding a pitfall on the right.

Return: (machine translated)
We follow the path from the fita that in 10 min leaves us in the car.
