Summary: (machine translated)
Also known as Poço do Inferno, it is a ravine with two parts divided by the road. In the first part is the waterfall of Poço do Inferno, something easier and the second part, after the bridge, without being of difficulty, it does have some more complicated steps. It can only really give us problems in spring with high flows.

Hydrology:

Access: (machine translated)
We must arrive to Manteigas from Covilha or Belmonte (A23 or N18).
If we arrive by the EN232 we turn south by the EN338 (we will already see indications of Poço do Inferno). We leave the village and a few kilometers later, after the bridge over the river, the road makes a couple of sharp bends and on the left is the detour to Poço do Inferno, we follow this little road to the parking 100m from the bridge over the river, next to the waterfall.

Approach: (machine translated)
We leave by the PR that takes us to the wooden bridge over the river, the beginning of the ravine (there is a signpost).

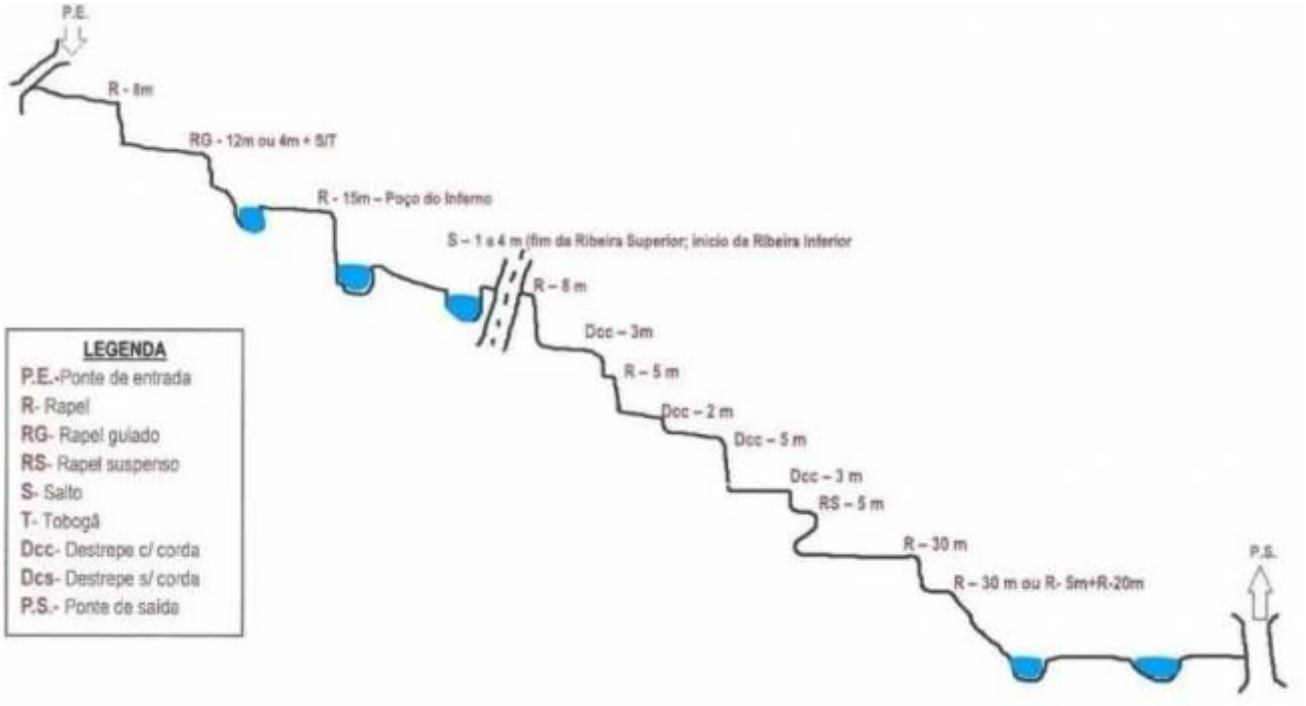

Tour: (machine translated)
See mole description

Return: (machine translated)
When we reach the exit bridge, we turn left along the PR "Rota do Javali" to the parking lot.
