Summary: (machine translated)
Generally dry canyon with 3 large rappels but without any difficulty. After rains it can be an interesting descent.
The route cannot be done between January and July, since the peregrine falcon breeds on this wall.
Next regulation
In summer it is usually a focus of ticks in the area.

Hydrology:

Access: (machine translated)
We will arrive at Trespaderne on the N639 and here we turn onto the BU530 towards Cillaperlata. Once in the village we go south and at the first right turn there is a track in front, we take it and after 100m another track that goes to the right towards the cut (the ravine). Arriving at the trees we park

Approach: (machine translated)
We get into a path that goes into the forest to climb the hill that remains to our left. After the hill we reach the road to Oña, we take it to the right and soon we reach the stream.

Tour: (machine translated)
Simple descent that is usually dry or nearly dry most of the time.

Return: (machine translated)
We go out to the track where we have left the car.
