Summary: (machine translated)
Dry canyon, almost a collector's item. Good views, quite vertical and with accesses and returns not too long. Best to avoid the hottest hours of the summer.
Perfect to combine with La Vieja

Hydrology:

Access: (machine translated)
Access Bcos Serra de Bernia
From Altea la Vella towards Callosa d'Ensarrià by the CV755.
Location Bcos Serra de Bernia
We will leave the Altea la Vella petrol station on the left and, a little further on, at the crossroads we will turn right onto the Urb Golf Don Cayo. We will follow the main avenue for about 3 km, up to the Costa Azul street where we will enter. After a few meters you will find Alhambra de Granada street on the right. There is a barrier that may or may not be open. We park the access car here. If we know it is going to be open we can park at the end of Alhambra street.
The return car (if we have two cars) will continue along Costa Azul, Giralda de Sevilla to Cornisa street. There we will have room on the right to park.

Approach: (machine translated)
Approaches to the Pinar de Calces and La Vieja woods
We will go up the street Alhambra de Granada and, after passing a water tank, we will see a path on our left, next to the water reservoir, which takes us up to the Pinar de Calces (there is a signpost). We will go up to the pine forest where we will find a trail junction that we take to the left and 100m after the trail turns north, we go west in search of the head of our ravine, when we see the head we will only have to go south along the watercourse to the R1.

Tour: (machine translated)
Vertical descent, in which we will have a constant succession of rappels to save the steep slope. Except for the R4, which is quite aesthetically pleasing, no other rappel is out of the ordinary.
The gully is quite dressed and at times it may disturb our progress along the riverbed.

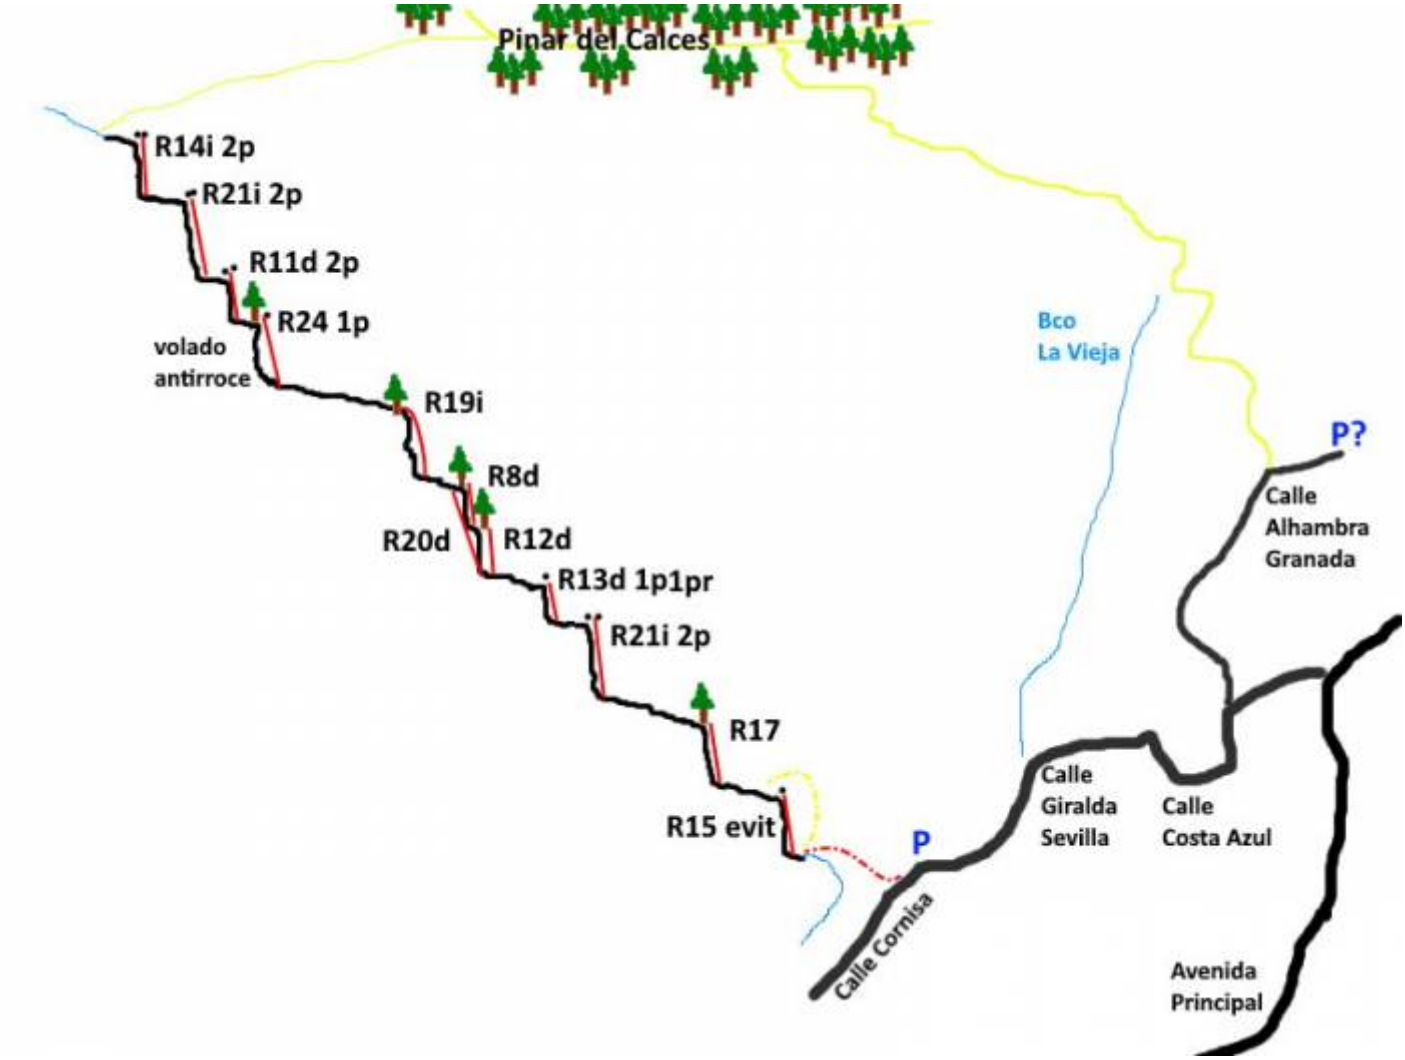

Return: (machine translated)
After the last rappel, which we can avoid on the left, we will go to the left to go to the other side to the road. Then we will follow the road to the left to the car.
