Specialities:

Gear:

Summary: (machine translated)
After the first rappelling route, there’s a part where you have to look around a bit to find a path through the trees that were swept away by winter avalanches.
The interesting part begins halfway up to the starting bridge.

Hydrology:

Access: (machine translated)
Park your car 200 meters above the village of Chiampernotto (941 m).

Approach: (machine translated)
Follow the trail that winds between the houses to the “Mt. Plu” climbing gym. Passing the Monaviel huts (1,282 m), you’ll reach the starting point after another 15 minutes (1.15 hours total).

Tour: (machine translated)
After the first rappelling route, there’s a part where you’ll have to look around a bit to find a path through the trees that were swept away by winter avalanches.
The interesting part begins halfway up to the starting bridge.

Be careful when retrieving your ropes during the final rappelling route.

Overall, this canyon is only worth visiting as an alternative route.

Return: (machine translated)
It is recommended to leave a rope at the bridge for the ascent. If you go beyond the bridge during the final rappel section, C32, retrieving the rope is somewhat difficult. Retrieving the rope from the bridge is possible and easier. The canyons are well-secured except for the final rappel section.
